

~~31160~~

6903

~~B~~

[T. Hester]

100

No 304, 306

Ent<sup>a</sup> B Dec 1548.

S.C. 13253. (See History of the IV m. (with a))

THE PEARLE OF PRACTISE,

OR PRACTISERS PEARLE, FOR PHISICKE AND CHIRVRGERIE.

Found out by I. H. (a Spagericke or distiller) amongst the learned obseruations and prooued practises of many expert men in both faculties.

Since his death it is garnished and brought into some methode by a welwiller of his.

AT LONDON,

Printed by Richard Field, dwelling in the Black-friers.

1594.

THE HISTORY

OF THE ROYAL

ACADEMY OF SCIENCES

AND ARTS

OF THE CITY OF LONDON

IN THE YEAR 1700

AND

OF THE

1700

TO THE FAMOUS MECÆNAS, OF ALL GOOD LEARNING, HIS HONORABLE

GOOD PATRONE, SIR GEORGE CAREY, Knight, Knight Mareschall of her Maiesties houshold, Gouvernour of the Isle of Wight, &c.

Health of soule and bodie, be multiplied for euer and euer.

His peece of timber, which an other man had roughly hewen ouer, wanting a name (which I haue giuen vnto it) but not a defence & patronage, vnder whose couert, it may be shielded, from the venemous darts of carping tongues: thinke it not amisse, to present the same vnto your excellent worthinesse; sith you haue euen borne, as good and liberall a minde, to learning, and learned workemen, in any facultie, as any noble Gentleman throughout this Realme of England. The subiect matter, whereon it consisteth, is charitable learning or learned charitie, practised vpon and performed vnto those, which haue stood in neede: and published by those, that are not ashamed, to shew their names (though for good causes two letters may yet serue to expresse them) being well knowne to the best, and may be compared with the best, in the facultie of Phisicke and keeping of a good conscience. The ground then being firme, and titlefree hold, whereupon the frame standeth: how can the stormie windes, proceeding out of the mouthes, of vnwholesome Æoles, infect it with their corruption, or one whit moue it with all their violence? I learned this true position long ago amongst other axiomes in the nurserie at Cambridge. Non nobis nati sumus, &c. we are not borne for our selues alone, but our countrie challēgeth an interest in vs, our children, our frendes, and our posteritie, do laye claime to vs. Howbeit such wicked dayes are come vpon vs, though a man, for glorie to God, loue to his posteritie, good will to his countrie, or other honest motiues, makes priuate things publike, for the common commoditie, of the Church and common wealth; he is not praysed of any, but reprobued of many, and condemned of all malicious Momes. Bonum quo communius eo melius, hath bene and will be a true morall principle: though some great learned men do scorne to put it in execution. The best Maister that euer I serued did reprove and condemne him, for an euill and vngratious seruant, that hid his talent in a napkin, refusing to put it forth, to his masters aduantage: Bind him hand and foote, and cast him into utter darknesse was, and will be the guerdon, of such priuate companions. As those practisers, are iustly reprobued, which (to toll in more customers) do hang out their signes, and gild their garlands, professing much cunning, and haue little or no learning: so dare I not auouch, to be of their Religion, which purpose nothing lesse, then to practise their

Epistle Dedicatorie.

Epistle Dedicatorie.

their cunning. God gaue Galene leaue (as Sippontinus writeth) to liue seuen score yeares, what separation he made of impurities from any simple, or what parting of elementes he vsed, I could neuer yet read or heare. But Paracelsus (nicknamed the Sectarie) did more good in three score yeares by working with his owne handes) according to natures direction) concealing no Theorie nor practise from posteritie, shewing much art, celando artem, though Filijs artis he is as playne as a pathway. His schollers and followers, that practised his teaching, and taught his practising, are a cloud of witnesses, to make demonstration of this true position. That with a few medecines, rightly compounded, and with some simples simplie, and without couin prepared, more good hath bene, and may be done, in one weeke against any disease, then in a moneth, with all the grosse confections (as VVecker termes them) in their blew pots, or with their hoarie heared drugs, in their braue boxes, which once in a yeare or two (if all men deale truly) must be swept out of dores. Shew me not the meate, but shew me the man: talke not of the receit, but speake truly of the effect. So many as are sand blind, and will not be stone blind, may verifie the truth of the safest kinde of curation; if they will bestow the paynes, to peruse the booke following. Herein is no bragging of cures done, nor promise of impossibilities: but the manner how, the persons who, and vpon whom they were performed, is truly and playnly set downe, euen as they were deliuered by writing or word of mouth. Briefly and in a word to conclude, I appeale vnto their consciences that haue found certaintie in this kinde of course, for all desperate diseases : albeit they will not be perswaded to giue euery one his due, but speake worse of Spagirickes, then they haue founde by them. Thus not to be further tedious vnto your W orship, I do breake off in the halfe way, not doubting, of your fauorable acceptation of this poore gift, which I beseech your noble eyes, not so much to regard, as the true & seruiceable hart of the giuer, to pray for your felicitie, for my good Ladies happinesse, the health and prosperitie of all your retinew.

Epistle Dedicatorie.

Your W orships in the possible performance of all kind of dutie for your selfe or your houshold,

To command at all times.

James Fourestier.

TO THE FRENDLY READER, AS MVCH HEALTH AS HE WISHETH OF SOVLE AND BODY.

MEn many times meddle in some matters, wherein they take more toile then thanke for their labors: and he which thinkes in the night, that he hath pleased all, shall find in the morning, that he hath angered some. So many as know me well, & whereto I was chiefly addicted, within these eight or nine yeares, that is vnto the studie and practise of the soule Phisicke; may now make a question, of my meddling so long vvith bodily Phisicke. But my two fold answer they may take vvith them, for their satisfaction. First that I keepe still Depositum illud, vvhich God hath committed vnto me (and sealed the same, by mine own spirituall birth, and other mens sanctification) till he that hath said, Go, points the time, and giues the occasion, of my further seruice, in that vvaightie function. Secondly, as vvhen I conuersed in that calling, I vvvas chargeable to none: so (not surceasing the same of mine owne accord) I haue since by God his blessing of my labors herein, as not greatly enriched my self: so not imponerished any. That vvherein I haue thus continued, sith it concerneth learning, and an honest mā's maintenance, cannot or ought not offend any, that are well in their vvits. These few secrets, cōtained in this Collectiō and Appendix thereto adioyning (which I haue reduced into methode for his sake that gathered them here and there) cannot or ought not to scandalize any, that haue a sanctified cunning, in Phisicke or Chirurgerie. I must needes tell thee, that I leane more to that safe, speedy, and pleasant kind of curation vvith medecines rightly prepared, then to the carelesse composition, made by addition of other simples, clogged vvith more impurities, then are in that simple, which they labour to correct. I dare also asouch, that any poore body, may better commit his crasie body, to be healed or helped, of any outward or inward malādie, by the right prepared medecines, for the value of ten shillings (which he can hardly spare) then a wealthy mā, to their deceits) I vvould say receits) for ten crownes.

The Epistle to the Reader.

which he may well enough forbear: Many of the ignorant sort haue counted the chymicall or Paracelsicall Phisicke dangerous, and not without cause, for wofull experience hath brought it into that suspition. But (good Reader) heare me in that which Ile tell thee, and so take thine answer for this time. Some of the learned, and most of the ignorant, haue in generall despised the, but by your leaue after they haue heard a particular of the excellēt successe attained by many of them; they haue aduentured vpon those, without knowledge, experience, direction: and so haue made many patients to smart for it. Therefore I would not that the fine fingered Phisitian should scorne to weare this pearle, which is as fit for Sir Iohn lack-Latin, for the lādleaper, or cogging quackesaluer, as a pipe for an asse, or a cage for a cow. The salts, oyles, waters, extractes, tinctures, simples prepared, and cōpositiōs of simples cōioyned mentioned in this booke or not mentioned, I meane not to make sale of (as the Grocer doth or the Apothecary:) but I keepe them in store, and meane to increase them, for mine owne vse, and my frends; and for such as shall need the, as the learned counsell, of Phisicke rules, shall giue occasion. The greatest part of them, were prepared by Iohn Hester of Paules wharfe, now deceased, a man that spēt much, & indāgered his body, about such workes, whereof many excellent men haue enoyed the benefite. The effect of his labour, hath and doth cōmend him, in Englād, and other cōuntries, which haue these many yeares made prooffe, of these his preparations. All which as not lōg since I bought of the Surruiner: so I am willing at all times, to part with any of the, to salue the wōunded, or heale the diseased. In the meane while and for euermore, I cōmit thee (Gentle Reader) in health or in sicknesse, to the protection of the Arch-Phisitian, and creator of our soules and bodies, who alwaies preserue vs, and all that be his, vnto the end and in the end.

From my studie in the Blackefriers the 19. of Ianuary.

Thy louing frend.

James Fourestier.

A NOTE OF SVCH PREPARED SIM- ples, and compositions, as are mentioned in this booke: with other things, not mentioned therein, whereof there is particular vse in Phisicke and Chirurgerie, and are to be had at the house of Iames Fourestier aforesayd.

The names of the seuerall kindes of Saltes.

Salts of Herbes as, of

Wormwood.
Mintes.

Carduus Benedictus.

Chamomill.

Radish.

S. Iohns wort.

Sea holy.

Centaurie.

Rosemarie.

Fennell.

Time.

Beane stalkes.

Blacke Hellebore.

Brionie.

Sage.

Maioram.

Germander.

Melilote.

Chamepitis.

Hysope.

Feuerfew.

Gentian.

Alifanders.

Mugwort.

Fumitorie.

Origanum.

Eufrafie, or Eyebright.

Tartar Christalline.

Pockwood, or Lignum vita.

Saltes of trees and fruticall plants, as

A Sh.
Juniper.

Iuie.

Broome.

Vine.

Saltes of spices and other things, as of

C Loues.

Ginger.

Cinamon.

Nutmegs.

Vrine.

Armoniacke

of Amber.

Vineger.

Salt, or Suger,

of Saturne.

Salt niter out of Ireland.

Alome del Plume.

Tartar six times

calcined.

Sal conditum.

Lapilli Vrine.

Salt common calcined.

A causticke.

A

The names of the diuers kinds of waters as of

CInamon.
Cloues.

Nutmegs.
Franckincense.
Turpentine.

Waxe.

Horne.

Aqua fortis.

Aqua Regis.

Aqua Spermatis ranarum.

Egges.

Harts horne.

Amber.

Vineger distilled.

Spirit of wine.

Fragaria with spirite of wine.

Mans scull.

Pockwood.

Resina pini.

Percepier.

Roses.

Aqua vite of roses.

Sweet water.

Aqua vite of Percepier.

Aqua vite of Iuniper berries.

Aqua vite of Turkie
balme.

Aqua Benedicta.

Walnuts.

Annise seede.

Sal gemme.

The seuerall kinds of oyles drawen by distillation or otherwise prepared.

Oyles of Herbes
as of

Sweet margerome.

Sage.

Time.

Origanum.

Rosemarie flowers.

Hysope.

Mintes.

Lauender.

Penyroiall.

Camomill flowers.

Nenufar grossely
prepared.

Betonie and Camomill grossely prepared.

Roses by distillation.

Thorne apple.

Wormwood.

Oyles of seedes
as of

Anise.

Fennell.

Dill.

Carui or Caraway.

Commin.

Mustard.

Oyles

Oyles of fruites, berries and spices, as of

N Vttes..	Bay berries.	Ginger.
Figges.	Iuniper berries.	Cloues.
Sweet almondes.	Misselto of apples.	Maces.
Orenge peeles.	Nutmegs.	Pepper.
Lemon peeles.	Cinamon.

Oyles of trees, or woods, of gummes, stones, and other things, as of

L ignum vite.	Masticke.	Tartar.
Ashe.	Labdanum.	Stinking oyle of
Broome.	Ammoniacke.	Tartar.
Waxe.	Amber.	Vitrioll.
Honie.	Iet.	Sulfur.
Turpentine.	Benzoin.	Petroleum
Tarre.	Storax liquide.	de Lateribus.
Franckincense.	Castoreum.	Deares fuet.
Colophonie.	Mans scull.	Sperma cati.
Galbanum.	Butter.	Wormes.
Sagapenum.	Egges.

The severall kinds of Extractes or Essences, as of Herbes, rootes, &c.

V Wormwood.	Angelica.	Soldanella.
Chamomil.	Sauine.	Laureola.
Sage.	Perwincle.	Aloes.
Celandine.	Carduus Bened.	Polipodie.
Betonie.	Feuerfew.	Bruscus.
Agrimonie.	Percepier.	Centorie.
Tansie.	Rue.	Enula campana.
Horehound.	Peonie.	Mellissa or Balme.
Eufrasie.	Iuniper.	Ginger.
Marygold.	Broome flowers.	Muske.
Fumitory.	Hermodactiles.	Squilla.
Henbane.	Sena.	Sarcocolla.
Chamepitis.	Agaricke.	Cantarides.
Tormentill.	Cnicus or bastard.	Spicknard.
Philipendula.	Saffron.	Zedoaria.
Blacke Hellebore.	Rubarb.	Pepper.
Aristolochie.	Colocinthis.	Orenge peeles.
Gentian.

A NOTE OF THE DIVERS KINDS of compositions as followeth.

- |                            |                                |
|----------------------------|--------------------------------|
| L Andanum anodinum. | Electuario Angelica.           |
| Panchimagogon.             | Balsamum artificiale.          |
| Amuletum Palmarij.         | Electuarium magistrale.        |
| Oleum benedictum.          | Aqua preseruans.               |
| Oleum sine Mumia Tartari.  | Magno liquore.                 |
| Oleum Heracl. Rulandi.     | Cerotum magistrale.            |
| Mumia vitrioli.            | Oleum Philosophorum de         |
| Creta vitrioli.            | Terebinth. & cera.             |
| Crocus Martis.             | Vnguentum ex Lytargirio.       |
| Balsamum sulphuris.        | Aqua reale.                    |
| Flos sulphuris.            | Sirupo del Ebulo composit.     |
| Oleum Camphora.            | Vnguent against contra-        |
| Essencia perlarum.         | ctions.                        |
| Flores Antimonij.          | Vnguento magno.                |
| Mercurius Antimonij.       | Pillula contra morbum Gallicū. |
| Vitrum Antimonij.          | Cordiale rosarū sine sulphure. |
| Turpetum minerale          | Balsamus vrina descriptione    |
| Quercetani.                | Willichij.                     |
| Turpetum Diaph.            | Our solutiue liquor.           |
| Sulphur vitriolatum.       | Oyle of Nicotian.              |
| Mercurius sublimatus.      | Paracelsus his Vulnerarie      |
| Mercurius precipitatus.    | oyle.                          |
| Aqua Theriacalis.          | Water for the eyes.            |
| Calx testarum ouorum.      | Water for pinne and web.       |
| Emplastrum Fodicationis.   | Aqua Persicaria.               |
| Gibsons balme.             | Vnguento nigro.                |
| Petra Philosophale nostra. | Vnguent to cause haire to      |
| Pillule Aquilone.          | grow.                          |
| Oleum Hypericonis compo-   | Vnguent to cense wounds.       |
| situm.                     | Vnguent defensatiue.           |
| Oleum Balsami.             | Vnguent stomachall.            |
| Aqua Balsami.              | Vnguent against aches and      |
| Dia Aromatico.             | bruises.                       |

Extract

Extract against all obstructions.

Adeps urfi.

Medulla Mummie.

Our composition against the strangurie, Ischurie, or stone in the bladder, &c.

Balsamum Tartari.

Spirite of honie.

Spirite of Tartar.

Tincture of sulphur.

Powder to mundifie vlcers.

Mater Balsami.

A composition against burning and scalding.

Vigoes balme.

Aqua del petra Vegetab.

Tinctures of Spices.

Spiritus tartari cū colcothare rectificat.

Another water for the eyes.

Syrupus spinamerula.

Cinamon water.

Vnguent de Peto.

Mans bloud dried.

Cranium humanum calcined.

Our composition against all feuers.

Our compositiō against the wormes.

Gumme of the roote and herbe Henbane.

A iij

A TABLE OF ALL THE PRINCIPALL matters contained in the Collection.

In the Proeme are contained these things.

THe durie of an expert Chirur-gian. pag. 1
The generall cure of wounds. 1
Why wounds cannot heale quickly. 2
How to deale generally with wounds
in the head. ibidem

Of Woundes.

A Greuous wound on the head
cured. 3
A dangerous wound cured in five dayes. ibidem
A wound on the eare. ibidem Woundes in the head with the fracture of the skull. 4 Contusions in the head or else where. 5
Contusion quickly healed. ibidem Wound in the head with the skull fractured. ibidem
To heale woundes speedily. 6
Woundes by shot or lance. ibid.
A singular remedie for the speedie healing of woundes. ibidem Wounded eye with a splinter. 7
Puncture in the eye. ibidem
Another cure done in like maner. 7
A squatted hand healed. 8
A punctured arme healed. ibidem
Five wounds in the breast healed. 8

Of sores, vlcers, &c. and their cure.

SOre mouthes healed. 9
Vlcer in the vpper lippe. ibidem
Vlcer in the throate. 10
Scald head healed. ibidem
Another for the same. ibidem
Vlcer on the thombe. ibidem
Vlcerated legge. 11
Two purified vlcers on the legge healed. ibidem
Three vlcers in the legge healed. ib

Old rotten sores cured. 12
Vlcers in most partes of the bodie and head. ibidem
Scabs like the leprosie. 13
A child healed that had the Fréch pockes. 14
A canker cured. ibidem Pockie pustules with Serpigo healed. ibidem
Tetters and ringwormes. 15
Another. ibidem
Tetters on womens breasts. 16
Shingles healed. ibidem
To breake a plague sore. ibidem
Scabs and itch, &c. ibidem
Three deepe fistulaes in the breast
cured. ibidem
Lichen or Impetigo cured. 18
A great wenne taken away.

Secōd part of the Collection.

Of the cures of internall diseases.

OF greuous aches and paine in the bodie. 19
Aches comming of the pockes cured. ibidem
An excellent vnguent to ease any payne. 20
To ease the gout. ibidem
To cure aches coming of heate. 21
The cure of the scurvie. ibidem Tumors throughout the body cured. 22
Swelling of the cods. 23
Another of the same. ibidem
The Ischiatica cured. ibidem
Against the crampe. ibidem Against contraction of sinewes. 24
A wrie necke set straight. ibidem
Another. 25
Squinancie cured. ibidem
Alopecia cured. ibidem
To purge the head. ibidem

Binne

Pinne and web cured.	26	else where.	39
An approued water for the eyes. ib.		A quartaine of lōg cōtinuance. ibi.
Another.	ibidem	Against the pestilence, plurisie &
To stay bleeding at the nose.	27	quartaine.	40
Another for the same.	ibidem	Swelling of the splene.	ibidem
Another.	ibidem	Frātick feuers for wāt of sleepe. ib.
Another.	ibidem	Pestilent feuers.	41
Another.	28	Against poison or the pestilence a
Other wayes to do the same. ibid.		Diaphoreticall potion.	ibidem
Spatting of bloud.	ibidem	The signes of death in the plague.
Another.	ibidem		ibidem
Lift vp the vuula.	ibidem	Cōsels, preseruatiues, &c. against
Cure of the hicker.	29	the plague.	42
Another.	ibidem	An inueterate Gonorrhea in man
The falling sicknesse cured. ibidem		or worman.	ibidem
Another.	ibidem	Another.	43
Iaundies cured.	30	An Electuarie against Gonorrhea.
Another.	ibidem		ibidem
Another.	31	To stoppe the immoderate fluxe
Iaundies with obstruction of men-		menstruall.	44
strues.	ibidem	Another.	ibidem
Windinesse in the stomacke. ibid.		To stoppe a fluxe.	ibidem
Cough of the lungs.	32	Bloudy fluxe cured.	45
Another with stitch in the side. ib.		Cures of the Hemorhoides. ibid.
Shortnesse of breath w a cough. 32		Ficus in ano.	ibidem
Another.	33	To prouoke menstrues.	46
To stay vomiting.	ibidem	Another of the same.	ibidem
Another.	ibidem	Suffocation of the Matrix.	47
Vomiting of bloud with a fluxe of		Another for the same.	ibidem
the bellie.	34	To prouoke vrine.	ibidem
Vomiting with a feuer.	ibidem	To prouoke vrine and to heale o-
Plurisie cured.	35	ther obstructions.	48
Plurisie with spatting of bloud. ibi.		The first part of the supple-
Plurisie with inflammation of the		ment, or Appendix, &amp;c.
toung, &c.	ibidem	Of paine in the head & the cure. 49
Plurisie in a woman.	36	Of the catharre and reume in the
Another for the same.	ibidem	head.	50
Diaphoreticall decoction. ibidem		The second cause to cure the Ca-
Plurisie broken with a porion. ibid.		tharre.	51
Another.	37	Contusion in the head.	52
An inward Aposteme or bastard		The healing of the white scall,	53
plurisie.	ibidem	Payne in the eyes.	ibidem
Payne in the side.	ibidem	An vnguent for sore eyes.	ibidem
Payne and wind in the body.	38	To stay spatting of bloud.	ibidem
Expelling of wind.	ibidem	The description and cure of the
Dropsie cured.	ibidem	Squinancie.	ibidem Against wormes in the stomack or

The description and cure, of scrophulæ.	54	Of Erisipela & the cure therof. ibi.
Another cure for the same.	55	The cure of wartes.	72
Another for the same.	ibidem	The second part of the Appendix, &amp;c.
Another.	ibidem	Of Danewort and his vertues.	73
Of Panaricium and the cure.	56	Of Eleborus niger and his vertues.
Ulcers in womens breasts.	ibidem		73
Of Astma and the cure of it.	57	Of Gratia Dei, & the vertue thereof.	74
To know a confirmed dropsie.	58	Of Rubarb and his vse.	ibidem
Against wormes.	ibidem	Of Tithymale and his vertues.	75
Hardnes of the milt & the cure. ibi.		Of Soldanella and his vertues.	76
Another for the same.	ibidem	Of Cyperus and his vertues.	ibid.
Of the Gonorrhea & the cure. ibi.		Of Elder and his vertues.	ibidem
Of the Hemorrhoides and their cure.	60	Of Tabaco and his vse.	ibidem
Of the diuers sorts & effects of the Hemorrhoides & their cure. ibi.		Of sweet Margerom and his vertues.	77
Suffocation of the matrix and the cure thereof.	61	Of Persicaria and his vse.	ibidem
Of the rupture and the cure in the beginning.	62	Of man and the medecines taken from him.	78
Another.	ibidem	Of an henne and the Phisicall vse thereof.	79
Of retétion of vrine & the cure.	63	Of Eeles & their medecinal vse.	80
Of the difficultie of vrine and the cure thereof.	68	Of the Barbill and her vse in medecine.	ibidem
Another for the same often prooued.	ibidem	Of Bees & their medecinall vse.	ib.
Of retention of vrine with stitch in the side.	69	Of Frogs & their Phisicall vse.	81
Swelling of the legges and feete & their cure.	ibidem	Of Centumpedes, Crickets, &c. & their vse.	ibidem
Of Chilblaines and their cure.	70	Of Tacca mahacca and the vse thereof.	82
Of cornes in the feete and to take them away.	ibidem	Of the gumme Caranna and the vse thereof.	ibidem
Of a greefe vnder the nayles of the fingers and toes and the cure.	71	Of Liquide amber and the vse of it in medecine.	ibidem

Faultes escaped in the Printing.

In the Epistle Dedicatorie, pag. 1. lin. 17. for these wordes haue euen borne, read these haue euer borne. Pag. 8 of the booke, lin. 5. for Carton, read Carlton. pag. 40. lin. 11. for Paraceli; read Paracelsi. pag. 54. after the 6. line before the tittle of the Chapter, read CHAP. 111. which is omitted in the number. pag. 3. lin. 6. for you finde, read you shall finde. pag. 12. lin. 17. for heate, read heale. pag. 77. last line thereof, for our part, read one part. pag. 31. last line sauing one, for vicious cause, read, viscous cause. pag. 35. lin. 15. for lb. j read, Pj. page. 48. lin. 3. Adde this word Note in the margent. page. 63. lin. 13. for the vayne, read the vrine.

THE PROEME, OR ENTRANCE, INTO THIS COL-LECTION: CONTAINED IN THE first foure Chapters.

CHAP. I.

What the dutie of an expert Chirurgian is.

Good and true Chirurgian, is no other, thē a minister and helper of nature; who hath three operations to performe, in curing of woundes. The first is, that he ioynē the seperated parts close together, the second to preserve it from paine: the third, that he keepe it from putrification: all the rest he may leaue vnto nature, which will worke with good expedition. And this is a sure intention: concerning the cure of woundes. Neuer keepe the flesh open, with tents or pledgets, neither weaken nature, by letting of bloud, or by purging, nor yet by strait diet, to cause the paine to increase, but keepe the wound alwayes cleane, washing it with Aqua balsami; and lay vpon the wound, clothes wette in Magno licore. This is a good, and an approued order: whereof whosoever wil know more, let him looke in Leonardo Fiorauante his booke, of Rational secrets, where he shall be satisfied more at large.

CHAP. II.

The cure of all manner of woundes in generall.

All kinde of woundes, may be healed, with these medicines following (according to the method before men-
B

The first part of this tioned) viz. with our balsamo, with Aqua balsami, balsamum artificiale, quintaessentia vini, oleum resinapini, oleum cera & terebinthina, magno licore, cerotum magistrale, elixir vite, o- leum hypericonis compositum, our secret powder, all which are set downe, in the forenamed booke, and for the most part, are to be had, for a reasonable consideration, at the house of
M. Iames Fourestier, student in Physicke dwelling in London, in the Black Friars, betweene the two tennise courts.

CHAP. III.

The cause why wvounds cannot heale quicklie.

THough there be many more, yet chieflie they may be reduced vnto two causes. The one is an immoderate & extreme diet, which weakneth the stomack and body so much, that nature cannot preuaile, to conglutinate or so-der the flesh together. And thus thorough want of naturall heate, the wound falleth to impostemation, Gangrena, fi- stulaes. &c. and can hardly be cured. The second cause is, the keeping of them too much open, by reason of their tents or pledgets, so that they cannot ioine together agayne, but grow to Cancers, and Fistulaes, whereupon many times, the patient remaineth lame euer after, or else speedie death is the end thereof.

CHAP. IIII.

Of wvoundes in the head, how they must be dealt vvithall.

ALl wounds in the head, must be close ioyned and kept together, the bloud must be crushed out, then wash it well, with some-thing that hath vertue to liquifie the bloud, as the Quintaessence of wine, or such like. Then lay thereon lint, wet in oleum benedictum: this medecine you shall change in foure dayes, but euery day once wash the wound round about, with that Quintaessence, and annoint with the said oyle,

oyle, and at the fourrh dayes end, diesse it agayne, and let it remaine two dayes more, & after that for a day more, & the wound (by the helpe of God) shalbe cured in xij. or xiiij. dayes. Thus may you deale, with all wounds, saue those, that are made in the bellie. As for all other, either simple or compound wounds: you finde their cure, methodically shewed, in the Rationall secrets, of Leonardo Fiorauante published in English.

See S.T.C.
10879
Tr. by J. Clegh
See Intro.

CHAP. V.

The healing of a greenous wound on the side of the head.

THe wound was made, on the side of the head, almost to dura mater: and it was healed in this manner. First there was put into the same, the Quintaessence aforesaid, then a litle balsamo, then there was applied a cloth which was wet in magno licore, made very hote, vpon which cloth, was layd our secret powder, couered with lint, and thus he was dressed, once euery day, till he was whole. You must note, that whensoever the scull is hurt, vnto dura mater, there must be cast vp at the nosethrilles, our balsamo: that the smell may pierce vpward, and resoluë the offence. Sometime also, in stead of a defensatiue, you may annoint round about the wound, with the foresaid balme, which preserueth from putrifaction, and alteration.

CHAP. VI.

A dangerous wound in the head, cured in five dayes.

IT was healed very quicklie, by putting therein our Aqua calestis, and balsamo, and by applying vnto the same, very hote clothes, wet in magno licore.

CHAP. VII.

The cure of a wound, on the eare to the scull.

ASore wound was made on the eare, which was cut vnto the scull of the head, and was healed in this manner:

The first part of this
 first by annointing it with our Quintaeſſence, which caused it to waxe very hote, the ſpace of two houres. After that, there was put in, our oleum philoſophorum, de terebinthina &
ſera, and ſo he dreſſed it euery day once.

CHAP. VIII.

How three wounds in the head, vvith fracture of the bone or ſcull vvere healed by I. P.

A Certaine miller in Buckinghamſhire, called Peter Bull, being ſore wounded in the head, whereof one wound was in the miſt of the head, with fracture of the ſcull, an other within an inch of that, ſix inches long, he had an other wound, ouer his eyebrow two inches long. Beſides the woundes in his head, he had alſo a great wound, in the bowt of his arme, beſide the elbow, ſo that a mā might haue layd:
 his three fingers in it, diuers of his fingers were alſo cut, and he loſt two ioynts. This man bled by the ſpace of ſeu en or eight houres, before it was ſtinted: neither was he dreſſed, vntill the next day, but yet he was cured in this manner.
 Firſt the haire was ſhauen away, round about the woundes on his head, and the wounds were made cleane, then was there dropped into the wound, balsamum ſulphuris, made very warme: and a fine cloth wet therein was applied to the wounds, and round about the wounds there was a defenſatiue applied: thus he was dreſſed once in 24. houres, and within the ſpace of three weekes, he was perfectly holpen, that he ware no plaſter at all. Alſo you ſhall note that vpon the wound, next the cloth, there was layd cerotum ma- giſtrale, of Leonardo Fiorauante: Forget not that this balſame muſt alwayes be vſed warme, with a fine linnen cloth, or a peece of Cambrick, and not with any lint. This balſame did cauſe the haire to grow ſo faſt about the wounds:
 that it was fayne to be ſhauen away verie often.

CHAP.

CHAP. IX.

Of contused vvounds on the head or other parts of the bodie.

THE auncient practitioners, haue esteemed contused wounds to be verie dangerous. For they say contusions must first be brought to putrifiatiō, & turned into matter: which opinion is not to be allowed, for the bruses are to be dissolued without maturatiō, which hath bene a thousand times proued in the warres, after this manner to haue bene performed. Recipe, magno licore, oleum benedictum, ana, mixe them, & being verie hote, wet clothes therein, & lay thereon twise a day, and in three or foure dayes they wilbe resolued. Also the oyle of Franckinsence, or oleū philosophorum detereb. & cera, will resolue any simple bruise in three or foure houres, only by continual annointing the place therewith, so fast as it drinketh in any. Prouided, that the bruise be not aboue six or eight houres old, for if it be, then will your worke be somewhat the longer, before it be finished.

CHAP. X.

A contused vvound in the head, healed by I. P.

A Young man of 28. yeares of age, that had a great contusion on the head with a staffe, was helped thereof in nine dayes; by applying thereunto balsamum sulfuris, before mentioned.

CHAP. XI.

A vvound in the head, vvith fracture of the scull, cured by I. P.

A Litle boy, with a fall from an horse, had a fracture in the scull, which was healed with balsamum sulfuris, & cerotum magistrale Leonardo. The child, did at his dressing, vomite verie often: which argued the breaking of his scull, yet was he healed in seuen dayes.

The first part of this

CHAP. XII.

To heale vvoundes speedily.

First wash them verie well with our aqua balsami, then ioyn them verie close together, and lay thereon a cloth wet in oleo resinae pini: and (through Gods helpe) they shall quickly be healed.

CHAP. XIII.

To heale vvounds, by shot, or launce.

HE that will cure woundes, that are made with shot, launce, arrowes. &c. must first wash the wound well with vrine, & dry the wound well, then let him put therein the Quintaess. of wine and forthwith ioyn the wound close & hard together. Then let him put immediatly therein, fiue or six drops of our balsamo artific. and lay a cloth vpon the wound, wet in magno licore, which must be applied so hote, as he may suffer it: thus must he do the first day. That being done, he must put thereon our Quintaessence of wine, & then a litle balsamo, after that, some magno licore (as before was said) and so let him hold on, vnto the end of his cure.

CHAP. XIII.

A most singular and vvonderfull remedie, to heale vvoundes quicklie.

Wounds must be holpen, with drying medecines, (as was noted in the third Chapter) such medecines I say, as haue vertue, to preferue the part offended, frō putrifaction. This will be performed with our aqua balsami, and the oyle distilled from vernice liquide: for these two, are apt to heale all sortes of woundes: if ye wash them with the water and annoint them round about with the oyle, for they do not onely keepe the woundes from putrifying, but they helpe to cicatrise quicklie, and in such manner, as it seemeth seemeth marvailous, most profitable for the wounded patiēt, but best for the good and honest Surgeon, which abhorreth in his worke, to play the tinker, which in stopping of one hole, is wont to make three, but with as much safetie and speed, as nature and art will yeld, to bring to passe all his honest intentions.

CHAP. XV.

*A wound in the eye, with a splinter,
healed by W. H.*

A Splinter of wood, leapt into the eye of a certaine maiden, as she was chopping of stickes. The wound was so grievous, that the gellie of her eye came forth, by the space of a moneth: all this while, she could neither see, nor take any rest. By the blessing of God within foure dayes after, she could thred a needle, and was recovered in this manner. First there was dropped into her eye, balsamum sulfuris warme, and then a cloth wet therein, was applied thereunto by which onely she was cured: the maid dwelleth in Nottinghamshire.

CHAP. XVI.

A pricke in the eye, with a knife, healed by W. H.

A Child of seuen yeares of age, had a puncture in the eye, with a knife, which was cured, by dropping therein, balsamum sulfuris warme, and laying a defensatiue round about it.

Another cure performed in like manner by W. H.

One George Clarke, seruant to the right worshipfull, M. Butler of Denham (then high Sheriffe of Bedford) was healed, of a puncture in his eye, with the foresaid medecine.

The first part of this
CHAP. XVII.

An hand flat squatted, and contused,
healed by W. H.

AN old man, called Thomas Smith, of Carton in Northamptonshire, husbandman, in lopping of a tree, had his hand caught betweene two boughes, and was squatted in peeces; this contused hand, was presently put close together, and annointed with oleum philosophorum de Tereb. & cera, and through Gods goodnesse, was perfectly cured in eight dayes.

CHAP. XVIII.

A wound or puncture thorough the arme. I. P.

A Young man called Hudson, a Carpenter of Carlton in Northamptonshire, being thrust thorough the arme, with a pitchforke, was thus cured. First there was iniected Magno licore (as hote as he could abide it) into the wound. Then was there a linnen cloth, wett in the same oyle, applied vnto the wound, vpon the which cloth, was also layd, a pledget, of cerotum magistrale: this wounded man was healed in five or sixe dayes.

CHAP. XIX.

Five woundes in the brest.

A Certaine man, that had five stocadoes into the body, was thus cured. First there was put into the woundes, the Quintessence of wine. Then were the woundes dressed, with balsamo artific. which caused him to vomite, and to auoid much bruised bloud. After that he dranke, euery morning a litle aqua balsami, and in short time by Gods helpe was perfectly cured.

The manner to stay anie fluxe of bloud, or wayne: you shall finde in the 17. Chapter of the second part of this collectiō, and in the secrets of Leonardo Fiorauante, vvhether he intreateth of woundes.

Verbum

THE SECOND PART OF THE FIRST DIVISION.

Erbum sapienti sat est, and a man may know by the halfe, what the whole meanes. By these few experimented secretes, you may proccede, vnto the cure of any wound, contusion, or puncture: in what part of the bodie soeuer they shalbe. The things wherewith you are to worke, as balsamum sulfuris, oleum philosophorum de Terebinth. & cera, cerotum magistrale, &c. you may haue of M. Iames Forestier, dwelling in the Blacke friers. Now let vs proccede vnto the experimented secretes, concerning Vlcers, and Sores, either simple, or complicate with diseases, as they haue bene obserued, by those which haue proued them.

CHAP. XX.

The healing of sore mouthes.

THE Vlcers and Sores, that haue bene, in the mouthes of young and old, haue bene healed, by the lotion or gargisme, made with plantaine water, honie suckle water, and barlie water, mixed with saccarum Saturni.

CHAP. XXI.

An Vlcer in the upper lippe.

A Certaine porter of London, hauing an Vlcer on his vpper lippe, which was like a cancer (some called it No-lime tangere) continuallie running, with filthie stinking saues, was thus cured. First he was purged, with Turpetum mineral: then was the sore dressed with this medecine.

The first part of this

R. aloes lote, ℥℥, salis preparati, ℥ij, Mellis ℥iij, misce, & vtere.

CHAP. XXII.

An Vlcer in the throte, ex morbo Gallico.

A Young woman, that was much troubled in the throte, with a greuous Vlcer, was thus cured. First she was purged with Aromatico, & twise or thrise with our Quinta-essence solutine, mixed with syrup of roses, then was the sore touched, with Aquarealis, two or three times, with a litle lint, and lastly she vsed this gargarisme.

R. mellis rosarum, ℥ij, Diamorum, ℥ij ℥, honie suckle water, ana ℥vi. oleum vitrioli, as much as will suffice, to make it tart: this hath bene often proued in daungerous cases.

CHAP. XXIII.

The healing of a scald head.

A Womā had all her head couered, with a most filthy scab, which was dry aboue, and moist vnderneath, very noysome to behold, who could neither be healed, by purging, or locall medecines, that were vsed, till this medecine was applied vnto her. Once in a day, oleū ligni guaiaci, was applied, and in short time, the scall fell away, like a scull of an head, and there began haire to grow vnderneath it: this cure was performed in twelue dayes.

Another cure performed vpon a scald head.

A Maiden of eighteen yeaes of age, hauing an huge great scall vpon her head, was cured (after she had taken one dose of Aromatico) by often washing the part affected, with Mater balsami Fiorauante.

CHAP. XXIIII.

An Vlcer on the thombe.

ONe had such a filthie, & stinking Vlcer on the thombe, that the Chirurgians, would haue cut of the whole thumbe.

thumbe. This partie was afterward cured, by the application of Fodicationum emplastri.

CHAP. XXV.

An Vlceraed legge swolne.

A Young boy, that had an vlceraed legge wonderfully swolne, was thus cured. He receaued at two feuerall times, Quintaess. solutine, with syrupe of roses. Then were the sores washed, with salt of vitrioll, dissolued in plantaine water: a cloth being wet therein, and applied thereto morning and euening.

CHAP. XXVI.

Two putrifid Vlcers on the legge healed by I. P.

First this patient was purged, with Aromatico Leon. once or twice: then his Vlcers were dressed, with this vnguēt, made of rubified vitrioll: and a cerote, called the great Cerote. This was applied vnto the Vlcers, with a pledget of lint, and was suffred to lye 24. houres, which mortified the sores. Then was more of the same vnguent applied, and with an instrument the escare was loosed round about, and in three or foure dayes, the escare came away easily, with a paire of Mullets: then he healed it vp, with Magno licore, & saccarum plumbi, within a litle while after.

CHAP. XXVII.

Three Vlcers in the legge, healed by W. H.

A Certaine woman of Bedford, had three Vlcers in her legge, who had sought her cure, at the hands of diuers, the space of foure yeares, but could finde no helpe, yet she was afterward cured in this manner. First she tooke in the morning fasting Aromatico Leonardo, which euacuated her stomack and bellie. Then was there applied vnto the sores,

Saccarum plumbi, three or foure dayes together, which caused euery day, a certaine thinne skin to come vpon the Vlcers, much like the filme of an egge, the same skin was takē away euery day. With this medecine following, it was dressed the fourth day: which caused it, to looke faire, and red, the next dressing: and so in short time it was perfectly cured. To one spoonfull of magno licore was put as much saccarū Saturni, as would lye vpon a three pence: and so it was incorporated warme: the sores were dressed therewith euery day.

CHAP. XXVIII.

The cure of old rotten sores by W. R.

A Certaine old woman, did in this manner, helpe diuers old sores in the body. First she purged the patients, and then she applied this vnguent to the sores. Take a pot of strong ale, and set it to boile ouer a gentle fire, till it wax thicke, like a salve, and then vse it. At the first this medecine will smart, and be somewhat painfull to beare, neuerthelesse it will cleanse and heate.

Note.

Also a freind of mine told me, that the iuice of marigold leaues, or the leaues, boiled with milke to an vnguent, will heale all vlcers and woundes.

CHAP. XXIX.

The healing of vlcers, in most parts of the bodie: but chieslie in the head by W. H.

A Certaine man being full of vlcers, cōming of the pocks, in most parts of his bodie shewing theselues, but chieslie in the head, was cured in this manner. First he was purged, twise or thrise, with Panchinagogen, after that, he kept his chamber, (that had a good fire in it) and tooke six graines of Turpetum diaphoreticum, mixed with ʒj of Amuletū Palmarij. Halfe an houre before, he tooke a draught of fat broth, and kept his bed: and alwayes as he vomited, he washed shed his mouth, with a conuenient gargarisme, and sweat thereon, one houre or two, and then was dried with warme clothes: That done, he reposed a day or two, and tooke the foresaid Turpetum agayne, in manner aforesaid: this he did three or foure times. In the meane while, he annointed his vlcers with oleum guaiaci, which did both clense, and heale. Also diuers times, he vsed this potiō in the morning, which caused him to sweat. R. ℥ ij of the water of lignum vite, made by distillation, and as much of the sirrupe of fumitorie, and ℥ j of the salt of lignum vite, mixe them warme, and drinke it fasting. Thus in verie short time he was cured. This one thing must not be forgotten, that when there shall come, any inflammation or sorenesse in the mouth, you do vse this gargarisme following. Take plantaine water, hodie suckle water, ana ℥ iij, barlie water, ℥ vi. mel rosarum ℥ ij ℔, Diamorum ℥ ij, oleū vitrioli, as much as will make it tart: this will heale any sore in the mouth. Remember also, that if the vlcers be very corrosiue, and foule, you shall touch them, once or twise, with oleum vitrioli or oleum tartari fatens, whereby they will heale the sooner, this hath bene often proued.

CHAP. XXX.

The healing of scabs, like the leprosie, by G. M.

A Young man (which was thought to be infected with a leprosie) had on his head, and most partes of his bodie, hard and drie scabs, but he was cured in this manner. First he was purged with Aromatico Leonardo once or twise. Then euerie morning till he was cured, he tooke ℥ j of the extract of Camepiteos, either in a pill, or in drinke as he thought good. After that, his sores were dressed, with this vnguent. R. succi semperuini ℥ ij, succi plantaginis ℥ iij ℔, succi solani ℥ ij, sacchari Saturni ℥ ij ℔, mixe them, and stirre them well together ouer a gentle fire, till all the saccharum be dissolued, and therewith dresse the sores twise a day.

CHAP. XXXI.

The healing of a child, that was full of ulcers, comming of the pockes.

A Young child foure yeares old, that was griuouſlie tormented with the French diſeaſe, hauing extreme payne in his bodie, and being full of ſores, was thus cured. R the diſtilled water of lignum vite, ℥ i, ſalis eiſdem ℥ i, mixe them, and thereof the child dranke, with ſirupe of fumi torie or hops, morning and euening, and ſometi me the child ſweat thereon. Alſo the ſores were annointed, with this vnguent, R. oleum guaiaci, ℥ ſ, balsamum ſulſuris, ℥ ſ, saccarum plumbi, ℥ ſ, oleum camphora, five or ſix drops, the caput mortuum of aqua fortis, ℥ i, Mixe them well, and grind them on a ſtone, with May butter, & therewith the ſores were annointed morning and euening.

CHAP. XXXII.

A cancer cured by an old Empericke.

A Certaine Empericke, did helpe many cancers, in diuers people (that were troubled with the) after this manner. He tooke certaine wormes, called in Latine Centum pedes, in Engliſh ſowes: they are ſuch as lye vnder old timber, or betweene the barke and the tree. Theſe he ſtamped, and ſtrained with ale, & gaue the patient to drinke thereof morning and euening. This medecine cauſed many times, a certaine blacke bugge, or worme to come forth which had many legs, & was quicke: & after that the cancker would heale quicklie, with any conuenient medecine.

CHAP. XXXIII.

The healing of pockie puſtules, with Serpigo by W. H.

A Certaine man, hauing a number of ſores, all ouer his bodie, & a ſerpigo in the palme of his hand, ſo griuouſ, that that a man might haue layd great strawes therein, was healed in this manner. First he was purged three times, with six graines of Turpetum minerale Phadronis, mixed with halfe a dramme of Amuletum Palmarij. That done, he annointed all his sores twise or thrise, with oleum Tartari fœtens: afterward with unguentum ex Lithargirio Fiorauante. Now touching his handes, which had the serpigo, he held them morning & euening, ouer a bath of otes, or other warme herbes, that they might sweat: and then annointed them, with balsamum sulfuris, and in short time they were holpen. An vnguent made with saccarum Saturni and oyle of roses, will do the like effect.

CHAP. XXXIIII.

A tetter or ringworme, cured by W. K.

There is a certaine worme or tetter, which manie times cōmeth on the backe of the hand or arme, & doth corrode, like a serpigo, but it is none, which (after the vse of many other medecines) hath bene cured in this manner. The place was annointed 5. or six times a day, with the sirupe of sugar, that the worme might come to the vpper place or skin. Then within three or foure dayes after, he annointed the place with oleum Tartari fœtens: & in short time he was cured, though his disease, had continued three yeares, coming and going. Some haue killed the worme, with oleum vitrioli.

CHAP. XXXV.

A man cured, that vvas full of tetter.

This was the manner of his cure. He tooke the rennet of a calfe, and dronke it in milke three or foure times, and sweat thereupon: then he annointed the partes affected, with saccarum Saturni, mixed with oyle of roses warme.

CHAP. XXXVI.

Tetters in womens breastes, oftentimes cured as followeth,

They tooke five sponfulls of Madder, and boiled it in ale, and then strained it cleare, without pressing it at all, and dronke thereof, three or foure mornings. Then with the foresaid ointment, they vsed to annoint the partes griued, and thereupon (with Gods helpe) were quicklie healed.

CHAP. XXXVII.

The healing of Shingles.

They tooke for them, doues-dong newly made; and barlie meale; stamped them well, and mixed them with halfe a pint of vineger: they vsed it cold, to the place griued, and applied vine leaues (to keepe in the liquor) round about it. Then they bound it vp with clothes, and suffered it to lye three dayes, and then (if neede were) refreshed it agayne with a new plaister, and at the most, with the vse of three applications, it was perfectlie holpen.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

The breaking of a plague sore, by W. K.

HE tooke of elder leaues, as much as was sufficient, he stamped them verie well with drie figs, and put thereto auxungie porcina, and applied it warme to the sore, three or foure times a day, and it quicklie brake it.

CHAP. XXXIX.

Scabs and itch, vvith small pustules, taken quite away by I. H.

A Certaine man greatly troubled, with itch and pustules, in his hands, proceeding of a dissolued salt in his body, could could finde no helpe, till he vsed this course. He tooke Panchmagogon, twise in three dayes: that done, he washed his handes, with the salt of vitrioll dissolued in plantaine water, and shortlie after they went quite away.

CHAP. XL.

*Three deepe fistulaes in the breast,
cured by W. T.*

There was a certaine man, called R. B. dwelling in London, which hauing three deepe fistulaes in his breast, had bene long vnder the hands of vnskilfull Chirurgians, consuming both himselfe and his substance: but afterward by Gods helpe, he vsing the course, that W. T. prescribed, was cured verie speedilie. First he was purged euery second or third day for fise or sixe times together, with Turpetum minerale Phadronis, receauing thereof fise or six graines in Amul: Palmarij. Afterward, he was caused to sweat fise or six times, with this potion following.

R. the distilled water of lignum vitæ ℥ij, salis eiusdem ℥j, water of Carduus benedictus ℥ij, which being mixed, he dronke it warme in the morning, and sweat thereon two houres. After he was purged, he dressed the fistulaes two houres, with this vnguent (vntill they were mundified) vpō tents of shoe leather. When the fistulaes were clenfed, he dressed them only with Emplastrū Fodicationis (being made liquide, to wrap vp the tent with) till they were whole.

The mundificatiue ointment vvas this.

R. oyle of waxe, of succinum, of guaiacum, oleum hyperic. compositū, ana ℥ij, mixe them without fire & vse it with the aforefaid tents. Also you shall note, that he dronke no other drinke then this, all the while. R. lignū vitæ, the barke, sarsaparilla, ana ℥iiij, the rootes of Tormētill, Bistorta, virga pastoris, liquorice, ana ℥ij, Iuniper berries, ℥j, Mallow leaues, Sanicle, Alchimilla, Mugwort, Hypericon, Brunella, Com-

The second part concerning the cures
feric, ana Mij. Bring these into powder and for euery gallon of new tunned drinke, adde thereto, two or three ounces of this powder, in a linnen cloth : let it stand till it be stale, and let him drinke thereof.

CHAP. XLI.

The cure of Lichen, or Impetigo, by M. K.

A Certaine maiden 17.yeaes old , had all the flesh on her thombe, and forefinger eaten away , with the foresayd disease: which was cured by strawing thereon saccarũ Saturni, and applying thereto Cerotum magistrale Fiorauante.

CHAP. XLII.

A great wenne taken away by, W. H.

One that was troubled, with a great wenne , had it taken away , by washing it with strong lye made of oken ashes. I haue bene since told, of a certaintie, that if ye rubbe the wenne often , with the hand of a dead man , vntill the wenne waxe hote, it will consume away in short time after.
 Some rost an egge hard , and cut it in the midst, and lay it thereon and vsing this often the wenne will weare away.

THE SECOND PART CONCERNING THE CVRES OF INTERNAL DISEASES.

Thus much brieflie, in these short Chapters, is expressed and declared, concerning wvoundes and vlcers: vvhersoeuer they be, or howsoeuer they arise. By vvhich examples, the learned artist, may undertake other things, vvhich are not here mentioned. But in any case, let him be aduised by the vwise Phisitian, in his businesse, vvhether there is any difficultie and not runne by and by to his receit or experiment. It followeth now (in manner asforesaid) to set down the obserued practises of those that haue cured internall diseases, vvhich haue taken effect, and brought forth syntomes, outwardlie or inwardlie.

CHAP. I.

Of the cure of grienous aches, and payne, performed, by W. H.

Certaine man was greatly afflicted, with diuers wofull aches, and paines in his knees and shoulders, who was cured, by receauing a dose of Aromatico, and by application of emplastrum fetidum, vnto the griued parts.

CHAP. II.

The healing of aches, comming of the pockes, by W. H.

ONe of a verie darke and melancholike complexion, to whom some men in London, had giuen the fume, and

The second part concerning the cures
 the vnction, three or foure times : and yet left him possessed with most pitifull aches and paine in his ioynts; who for want of maintenance, was inforced to go into the countrie, where he was borne, and was there pittied of an honest Gentleman, which cured him in this sort. First he purged him twise or thrise with Aromatico Leonardo: which done, he tooke for foure or fve dayes together,  $\mathfrak{z}$   $\beta$ , of the extract of Hermodactiles, with white wine. Then vnto the articular parts that were grieved, he applied emplastrum fetidum,
W. H. and thus in short time he was healed throughlie.

CHAP. III.

A notable experience, of a medecine that hath brought great ease, to any great ache or paine, as of the gout, or otherwise.

TAke one or two, of the formost sucking whelpes, of a mastif or bearebitch, kill them, and take forth the guts, fill them with blacke snailes, roist them, and bast them with $\mathfrak{z}$  xij, of oyle of spike, coloured with saffron. Reserue that, which droppeth from them, and mixe it with as much oyle of waxe, and therewith annoint any ache or grief.

CHAP. IIII.

A particular vvay vvhereby the paine of the gout is soone eased or preuented, S. N.

TAke minium, the yolke of an egge, oyle of tartar, oyle of roses, as much of ech as you thinke sufficient, and with a litle saffran make it in forme of a plaister, and lay it on cold. I knew an other Gentleman, grieuousslie vexed with the gout, who was in this sort soone eased. First when he supposed that the payne would come, he tooke a dose of A- romatico Leonardo: then the next day, vnto those grieved parts, he applied this plaister. Take a pickle herring, and cut forth the bone, stampe it verie small with a litle bole Ar- moniacke,

moniacke, and rose water, and apply it cold to the grief, from place to place, as it goeth. Many men, after they haue bene well purged, haue had great ease by annointing the place, three or foure nights together, with aqua balsami Fioranate. Also oleum cera, is verie profitable in that case.

CHAP. V.

The cure of goutes, and all aches, comming of heate, by L. F.

First the patients were purged with Aromatico, then was this plaister applied, which is attractiue, resiccatiue, resolutiue, as being intentions farre better fitting that purpose, then any other. Take the marrow, of the bones of a calfe new killed, ℥j vitrioll in manner rubified, ℥j ℥, Cantharides in fine powder, ℥j, the ashes of the vine, ℥vi, mixe the all on a small fire, vntill they be incorporated, the with oile of waxe, make it in a liquide ointment, and spread it on a cloth, and lay it on cold. And when it waxeth drie, chafe it till the paine be ceased: this hath eased many in a short time.

CHAP. VI.

The remedie against the Scorbute or Scuruie, and the goute, by W. T.

A Young man of 26. yeares of age, mightilie troubled with the goute, and scuruie was after this sorr cured. First he was purged with Aromatico Leonardo. Then he vsed the purging drinke following euerie morning, that he might haue ech day 3. or foure stooles. At night, he tooke two ounces, of the distilled water of lignum vite, with ℥j of the sirupe of Couslips. Also he vsed to eate, these conferues following mixed together. R. conferue of Couslips ℥iiij. of sage, of rosemarie flowres, ana, ℥ij. of red roses ℥j. The quantitie which he tooke at once, was as much as a walnut. Also he annointed the griued partes with this vnguent. R. auxungie humana distilled ℥ij, oyle of Turpentine, ℥ij, of waxe ℥℥, mixe them together. Also in his vsuall drinke, which he dronke with his meate, was mixed Chamepites, sage, rosemarie, and betonie, this was the purging drinke. R. the strong decoction of lignum vite, put therein of the leaues of seua ℥ iiij. Epithimum ℥ ij, Hermodactiles ℥ iiij, Turbith ℥ j, Coloquintida ℥ ss, let them stand in warme sand 24. houres and strayne it, this he dronke in the morning fasting.

CHAP. VII.

Tumors in all partes of the bodie, taken away, by R. A.

THis was sent me by a freind of mine, who had seene the experience thereof diuers times. First he purged the patients twise, with Aromatico Leonardo: then he gaue vnto them ℥ ij of Quintaeſſence solutine, with ℥ j of sirupe of roses, foure or fve mornings together: and after it, they dranke a litle good broth made sweet with sugar: that done, they dronke this water following. R. herbe grace, sothernwood, mugwort, wormwood, ana M j, Iuniper berries, three or foure handfull, cut the herbes and bruiſe the berries, and infuse them in a gallon of white wine vinegar, 24. houres in a warme place. Then distill it with a gentle fire. This done, take that distilled vinegar, and infuse therein fresh herbes & berries, and distill it agayne as afore. Do so the third time, and distill it as afore. At the last infusion, you shall put therein ℥ iiij of good Mitridate, or Triacle, and distill them together, and keepe them close to your vse. Thereof the patients tooke, at foure a clocke in the morning, ℥ iiij, verie warme, whereupon they layd them downe and sweate, two or three houres, alway wiping it away with warme clothes. Euery sweating tyme, they changed their shirtes. When this medecine was ministred to a woman, she tooke but ℥ ij thereof. To a child he gaue ℥ ij. In this sort, he cured not onelie Tumors, but sores, pustules, feuers, Iaudies, &c.

CHAP.

CHAP. VIII.

Swelling of the coddles mitigated and resolved, by R. A.

A Certaine man, riding on a trotting horse, had his stones swolne, as big as ones fist, who was thus holpē. First he was purged once or twise, with Pāchimagogon, thē this Cataplasme was applied warme, vnto the part twise or thrise a day. R. the crums of browne bread, beane flowre, ana as much as is sufficiēt, boile them with new wort; when it is almost boiled, put thereto a litle Comminseed, and a dish of fresh butter, and so applie it warme. I haue seene the fat of an horse, to haue cured the foresaid griece.

Another for the same.

Take a pint of pure honie, as much beane flower, and two spoonfuls of vineger, of Comminseed ℥ ij, mixe them well together, and spread it on a cloth, and warme it a litle against the fire, and applie it.

CHAP. IX.

The cure of a painfull Ischiatica, by I. H.

A Certaine man, that was grievously troubled with the Ischiatica, was healed in this manner. First he was purged with Aromatico, then he tooke for fūe or six mornings together, two drammes of Quintaessence solutine, with sirupe of roses, and after the taking thereof he dronke a litle sweet broth. That done, he drew a blister with Cantarides, and when it had runne inough, he annointed the place, with oleum de terebinth. & cera; and in short time he was holpen. Since which time, I haue knowen three or foure persons holpen in the same manner, by annointing the griued parts with Aqua balsami Fiorauante.

CHAP. X.

An excellent remedie, against the crampe, proued often, by R. G.

They that were affected therewith, did vpon their bare skin & places griued, weare the roote of cōmon Flagge.

Also the skins of twentie siluer eeles, new fleane, and chopped small, boiled in two pound of May butter, and foure handfull of Rue, scumme it well, and annoint the place therewith worke the same effect. A worshipfull Gentleman, that had diuers times proued the same, sent these notes vnto me.

CHAP. XI.

Contraction or shrinking of sinewes, vvith consumption of the partie, holpen, by W. H.

A Man 26.yeares old, hauing a fore and grieuous vlcera-legge, fell into the handes of inexpert Surgeons, who with their corrosiues shrunke vp his sinewes, that he could neither go nor stand, but in short time after, he was cured in this manner. He was once purged with Aromatico, then he tooke Quintaeffe: solutine two or 3. dayes together, in sirupe of roses, and dronke thereupon a litle broth. Then did he vse the bath following diuers times, & annointed him with the ointment, against contraction of sinewes, described by Leonardo Fiorauante. Another man hauing his hand shrunke together, vpon the like occasion, was healed in the same order. This is the description of the bath. Take two or three young whelpes, that cannot see, boile them in water with mallowes, Hollihock, mellilot, walwort, Camomill, and one handfull: boile the whelpes, till the flesh fall from the bones, this done strayne it, and vse to bath therewith very warme.

CHAP. XII.

*The cure of one, vvwhose necke vvvas drawen
awrie, performed, by W. T.*

A Child had her necke drawen awrie, with a kinde of conuulsion, or crampe called Tetanus, and was thus cured.
First she dronke, euerie morning and euening, a litle Aqua balsami Fiorauante, then was her necke annointed, with some of the sayd water mixed with Magnolicore Fiorauante, and in

Diseases as Crampe contractions, &c.
in ten dayes she was cured.

Another of the same, by W. T.

Take Oleum de lateribus, ℥ j, Oleum Terebinth, ℥ ss, of Juniper berries, ℥ ij, of Cloues, ℥ j, Nutmegs, Maces, Ana. ℥ ss, mixe them with Oleum Cera, q. s. to make it in forme of a liniment, and therewith anoint the parts.

CHAP. XIII.

The Squinancie cured by I. P.

This medecine following, did helpe one that was so swolne and grieuously pained, that he could scarcely eate or drinke. R Olei philosophorum de lateribus, ℥ ij, olei lini, ℥ vj, olei cera, ℥ j, mixe them warme, and anoint the place affected, oftentimes in the day. Also one dram of the tooth of a wilde Boare, being drunke with ℥ ij of oile of Line-seed, doth helpe it presently.

Also another man, was forthwith cured thereof, which drunke one spoonefull of Aqua balsami, and wetting a cloth therein, applied it to his throate.

CHAP. XIII.

The cure of Alopecia, by I. P.

Agno licore Fiorauante, being annointed on the head, causeth the haire to grow againe abundantly, which are falne away, and to waxe black. Balsamum sulfuris also doth the same.

CHAP. XV.

A gargarisme to purge the head, by I. S.

Take Spikenard, Alizander seed, ana ℥ j, beate them into powder, and boile them in vinegar till halfe be consumed. Then straine it, and put thereto ss of Mustard,

E

26     The second part, concerning the cures of internall and ziii, of Rose water, boile it a little, keepe it close to thy vse, and when you will, you may take a spoonfull warme in the morning, and gargle therewith.

CHAP. XVI.

The Pinne and Web, cured by M. R.

HE tooke an handfull of Centumpedes, or Sowes, stamped and strained them with Ale, and gaue the patient to drinke thereof, three or foure mornings, and willed the patient to stop his nose and mouth, and to hang downe his head, and therewith hee was healed, as I was crediblie certified.

CHAP. XVII.

A water for sore eyes, prooued by M. E.

A Gentlewoman with this water hath cured a very great number of sore eyes. Shee tooke an Egge, hard sodden, cut it in the midst, and tooke forth the yoalke, and put thereto as much white Copperose as a Nutte. Then shee closed it together, and wrapped it in redde Fennell, and laide it to steepe foure and twentie houres in Rose water, then she strained it hard thorow a cloath, and dropped it into the eyes, morning and euening; it was held for a great secret.

Another maner or vvaie, to heale the Pinne and Webbe in the eyes.

TAke nine of the VVormes called Centumpedes, or Sowes, stampe and straine them, with the iuice of VVoodbine, or Betonic, for three or foure mornings together warme: which being drunke, will consume the VVebbe in the eye.

CHAP.

CHAP. XVIII.

The staying of the bleeding at the nose, done by M. R.

TAke burnt Lome, M ij, sharpe vinegar, ſb ſ, mixe them well, and lay it betweene a linnen cloth : and binde it to the forehead cold, and in ſhort ſpace it will ſtint.

Another for the ſame. I. H.

A Man of fiftie yeares of age, had a great fluxe of bloud at the noſethrill, which had continued a long time, and could finde no remedie, till he vſed this order and medicine following. Firſt his ring finger was bound hard with a thred, then was this cataplaſme following, applyed to his forehead and temples.

Take burnt lome, made in powder, M vj, ſtrong vinegar, as much as will ſuffice, to make it in forme of a Cataplaſme, to be applyed colde, thus in few houres the bloud ſtinted. Neuertheleſſe he tooke morning and euening, the ſume of Succinum album, at the mouth and noſe : which ſtaied the fluxe: and comforted the vitall and animall ſpirits. His diet was cold and drying, his drinke was water, or red wine, wherein was put Crocus martis.

Another kinde of curing the ſame, performed by D. B.

ONe bleeding at the noſe a day and a night, was thus helped. Hee made a tent of lint, and dipped it in Inke, and put it into his noſethrills, and laide a deſenſatiue ouer his eyes and noſe, made with Sanguis draconis, bole armoniacke, and a little vinegar.

Another vvay.

MAny haue beene cured, by applying vnto their coods, a linnen cloath wet in Vinegar.

E ij

Another.

SOME haue had the bleeding stinted, by applying the Herbe Peruinca vnto the nose.

Other waies to do the same.Note.

Arduus benedictus brused, and put vp into the nose-thrils, stinteth the bleeding at the nose. The same it performeth in a wound.

The herbe Geranium, which hath a red stalke, being put into the nose thrils or wound, doth the same: verie often prooued.

In like maner, and to the same effect, worketh Crocus martis.

Also the bloud of a man dried, worketh after the same order: both for the staying of bloud at the nose, and in a wound.

CHAP. XIX.

Spatting of bloud stayed, by I. H.

A Certaine woman spat bloud three or foure dayes in a great quantitie, who was cured by drinking the de-coction of mints in vineger.

Another for the same.

Also fiue or sixe drops of Oleum Mastiche, dronke in Cinamon water, staieth the spatting of bloud.

CHAP. XX.

*The falling downe of the Vuula, and the inflammation of the Almonds, in such sort, that they could not swallow their meat, nor fetch their breath well,
cured by W. T.*

TAKE white Amber grossie beaten  $\text{ʒj}$ , and with a fun-nell take the fume thereof, cast on a few coales, morning,

ning, noone, and night. Then take ℥j of old leauen, and spread it plasterwise on a cloath, strew thereon a little Commin seed, and the powder of white Amber, and applie it halfe an hand breadth to the crowne of the head, the space of an whole day, then at night lay on another, and in short time it will take away the swelling, often prooued.

CHAP. XXI.

The cure of the hicket, by W. B.

One that was diuers times grieuouſlie troubled with the Hicquet, was cured, by applying a browne toſt warme to his ſtomack: the toſte was ſteeped in Triacle and Aquavite.

Another.

Diuers haue beene cured thereof, by taking foure or fiue graines of Landanum noſtrum, in wine or Malmſey.

CHAP. XXII.

The falling ſickeſſe cured, by W. H.

A Certaine woman, being a Barbars wife in Bedfordſhire, which was greued therewith euery change of the Moone, was preſerued, by taking each day three drops of Oleum Heraclei. with the extract of Peſme.

Another performed by I. H.

Fiſt you ſhall purge them with the extract of Helleborus niger: the doſe whereof is from eight graines to twelue, being before well corrected, and then drunke in ſome conuenient liquor or potion. That done, he gaue them morning and evening of this compoſition: the which the longer that they uſe, the better will it be for them. R̄ effencie Peſme, contruct of Roſemarie flowres, of Betonie, ana q.v. mixe them together in forme of an electuarie: then adde
E.iiij.

30      The second part, concerning the cures of internall thereto, for euery ℥ of that composition, of oleum cranij hu- man ℥ j, and ℥ ss of oile of Rosemarie flowers, and twelue graines of oleum vitrioli. Hereof let them take ℥ ss, at a time, either by it selfe, or with some conuenient liquor, broth, or potion. Also the nuke of the neck, must be anointed with Oleum castorei: when they do fall, you shall anoint their nosethrils with oleum succinum, for that will in short time recouer them againe. It will be also very expedient to vse those things that comfort the braine and the heart.

CHAP. XXIII.

The cure of the Iaundies, by I. P.

A Yong maiden, much affected with them, was in this sort cured. She was twise purged with Aromatico, and as often with Panchimagogon. This done, shee felt her selfe verie much eased, saue onely in her yellow colour, which was thus also taken away. Shee tooke three or foure mornings ℥ iij, of the decoction of Goose dung, ℥ ij. of the extract of Centorie, which shee drunke warme, and so was cured.

Another for the same, by W. H.

A Woman that had the yellow Iaundies, aboue two yeares together, was thus cured. First she tooke ℥ j, of Balsamum artificiale Leon. Fior. with a spoonfull of white wine in the morning: which caused her the next day, to be as yellow as Saffron, all her bodie ouer, yea her haire of her head, and the nailes of her hands, and feete, very strange to behold. The third daie, shee tooke the same againe, and in three times shee was perfectlie cured. This was at Carleton, fise or fixe miles from Bedford. Certaine practitioners, haue found a great secret, in the salt called Lapilli urinae, or Paracelsus his Rebisola, against the Iaundies, and all obstructions.

Another

Another way, by the same person VV. H.

TAke Nucis Cupressi, Cassia ligni, ana  $\mathfrak{z}$  j, extract Centaurij,  $\mathfrak{D}$  ij, mixethem, and drinke it in white wine warme: and they shall after the receipt thereof, euacuate in their vrine, great store of yellowish choller, but by taking this medecine, twise or thrise, it will vade quite awaie, as hath beene often prooued. Remember, that before you take this medecine ( that it may worke with better effect ) you receiue a dose or two, of Aromatico Leonardo.

The cure of the Iaundies, with obstruction of the menstrues, performed by VV. H.

A Yong Gentlewoman, eightene yeares old, was grieued with the Iaundies and suppression of her naturall sicknesse: but was in this sort cured.

R<sup>r</sup> water of Madder rootes, Sage, and Betonie, ana  $\mathfrak{z}$  iiij, Spiritus Tartari,  $\mathfrak{z}$  ij, oleum vitrioli,  $\mathfrak{D}$  ij, mixe them, and drinke therof morning and euening two or three  $\mathfrak{z}$  warme. Also you shall note, that she was purged once ( before shee tooke this drinke ) with Arom. Leonardo, and so was perfectly cured, and had her courses againe, which before shee wanted seauen moneths and more.

CHAP. XXIIII.

The healing and cure of great windinesse in the stomacke, by I. H.

A Certaine Gentleman, who was afflicted with a windinesse in the stomack, that many times with extreame paine, he fell into a sound. In this miserie hee continued three yeares and more, but in this manner hee was holpen. First hee tooke Aromat. Leon. which euacuated vpward and downward, the grosse and viscous cause of this winde. After that hee had vsed this potion following fortie dayes

32      The second part, concerning the cures of internall
together. He tooke euery morning and euening, Spiritus tartari, corrected with his Cristaline salt halfe a spoonefull, Aqua preseruans as much. This withdrew the cause, opened all obstructions in the bodie, so that in a moneth he remained perfectly cured.

CHAP. XXV.

Cough of the lungs, cured by W. T. after this maner.

Recipe Aqua Marrubij, ℥vj, sirrup of Iuinbes, ℥ij, mixe them, and make thereof a Iulepe: whereof the patient tooke foure spoonfuls, with ℥j of Balsamum sulfuris, euery foure howres till he was well.

Another cured by W. T. which had also a sore stuch in the side.

First he tooke Aromat. Leon. and then tooke this potion following, for certaine dayes. R Cardius Benedictus, Hypericon, Folefoote, a little Enula campana, make thereof a decoction with Ale, and he dranke euery morning ℥j of Balsamum sulfuris, and a spoonfull of Aqua Balsami Fiora- uante, morning and euening, till he was cured.

CHAP. XXVI.

Shortnesse of breath, with a cough, remedied by M. R.

First he was purged with Aromatico Leonardo, then he vsed this diet, with hote and drying meates, roste or sodden. Enula campana, Hisop, and Liquerice, were infused in his wine. Also he vsed euery morning, to drinke or eate in a rere Egge, ℥ss of Balsamum sulfuris, and thereby was safe-lie and quicklie cured.

Another

Another remedie for shortnesse of breath.

THe wormes called Centumpedes or Sowes, are of great vertue, to discharge the lungs, that are stuffed with grosse fleame.

CHAP. XXVII.

An approoved remedie to staie vomiting, by M. R.

A Man of thirtie yeares old, was troubled a long time with sore vomiting, throwing vp presently whatsoeuer he ate or dranke, and was thus relieued. R. Malmesey  $\mathfrak{z}$  vj, Oleum vitrioli, vj. drops or more, mixe them together, and take thereof euery morning fasting,  $\mathfrak{z}$  j, or there about, and in short time it will stay the vomite.

To staie vomiting of blood.

TAke five or sixe drops of oile of Mastick, and drinke it in Cinamon water.

To stay vomiting, another waie.

A Pultus thus made, as followeth, and applyed to the stomach, staieth vomiting. Take Rie leauen, and mixe it with the iuice of mints, and a little vinegar, ouer the fire, in forme of a pultus, when you do applie it to the stomach, strew thereon the powder of Cloues, and so oft as it cooleth applie it warme. Also a Rie toste stieped in vinegar, is profitable for the stomach.

The oile of Wormwood (that commeth by distillation) being drunke with conuenient liquors, or potions, and the same compounded with other conuenient things, and applyed to the stomach, doth worke notable effect this way, and is good against manie other maladies.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Vomiting of bloud, with a cruell fluxe of the bellie, staied by M. R.

A Man 45 yeares old, that had congeled bloud in his bodie, did vomite aboundance of bloud, and auoied downward a certaine blacke matter like vnto pitche. He had a great fitch in his side, without a feauer: and alwaies when he vomited, it was thought he would haue died, this man was by Gods helpe thus cured. First hee tooke this potion. Take the water of Nettle rootes  $\mathfrak{z}$  viij, Oleum vitrioli, as much as will make it tart. He dranke thereof cold, which presently mitigated both the fluxes. Then vnto the stomack and throate, was applyed this pultus warme, both morning and euening, which wrought an excellent effect.  $\mathcal{R}$ . the crummes of Rie bread,  $\mathcal{M}$  xij, Red wine or Aligant, strong Vineger, ana q. s. boile them to the forme of a pultus. Then hee tooke at the mouth and nose, the fume of Succinum or Amber, which strengthened the vitall and animall spirits. His side was annointed with this ointment, which tooke away the pricking and paine.  $\mathcal{R}$ . Vnguent. de Alihea,  $\mathfrak{z}$  4, amigdalarum dulcium,  $\mathfrak{z}$  j, mixe them, and therewith annoint the side, morning and euening. His diet was this, all his meate was boiled in Red wine, or Smithes water. His drinke was the decoction of Nettle rootes, or Red Wine, wherein Steele had beene quenched diuerse times.

Vomiting ioyned with a Feauer.

A Gentlewoman affected with these greefes, was in this manner comforted.  $\mathcal{R}$ . Aqua balsami,  $\mathfrak{z}$  j, Aqua preseru.  $\mathfrak{z}$  ij, oleum piperis, Graines vj, mixe them well with a good spoonfull of the sirupe of Quinces, and so she dranke it, at the beginning of the heate.

CHAP.

CHAP. XXIX.

A great and sore plurisie cured, by M. R.

A Certaine man of xxiiij. yeares old was vexed with a most greuous plurisie, with pricking, shooting, and a cough, with a continuall feauer, and inflammation of the tongue. First, there was good store of bloud taken from the liuer vaine, on that side where the paine was. Then were these sirups (that do decoct and purge) ministred vnto him. R. Syrupi de liquericia, de Hysopo, acetosa ana ℥ j, Oximellitidis squillitici, aceti squillitici, ana ℥ iij, make thereof a loche, whereof in the morning he licked with a Liquorice stick, which caused him to spatte easilie, and tooke away the heate or burning of the tongue, being vsed with this decoction. R. French Barlie, ℥ iij, Carduus Benedictus, M j, Roses, Violets, ana ℔ j, Licorice scraped, ℥ iij, Figs iij, Raisin, ℥ j ℔, Sugar Candie ℥ ij, boile them in xvi. ℔. of water, till two pound be wasted, and so drinke it colde. Also his diet was light and thinne, as broth and drinke, &c.

Plurisie, with spitting of bloud, cured by M. R.

First there was made this purging preparatiue. R. Senae ℥ vj, Carduus Benedictus, M ℔, Sugar, ℥ ℔, Ginger, ℥ ℔, laie them to infuse one night in warme wheate, made of Goates milke, ℔ j ℔, whereof yee shall giue morning and euening, ℥ iij warme: this purgeth gentlie, and causeth to spat easilie. Then three daies after, they must bleed well on the liuer vaine, and their drinke at meales, was the decoction of hyssop, violets, liquerice, and raisins with sugar.

Plurisie, with inflammation of the tongue, and costinesse of the bodie. M. R.

First they were purged with Aromatico, and then vsed this gargarisme. R. Semperuine, or howfleeke, M ij, boile them in a quart of water, till a third be wasted. Then straine it,

F ij

36 The second part concerning the cures of internall
and put thereto ℥ij of wine vinegar, wherewith they gar-garised warme oftentimes. Then they vsed Mel rosarum, which tooke away the blacknesse of the toung. Their diet was moist and cooling as followeth. R. French Barlie ℥℥, Figs viij, Raisens ℥iiij, boile and straine them, and put thereto oleum vitrioli, q. s. to make it tart, and so drinke thereof.

Plurisie in a woman cured.

First she was purged with Arom. Leonardo, then vnto her side there was applyed this vnguent, seauen or eight times a day, which tooke away her paine. R. unguenti de Althea, ℥ij, oile of sweete Almonds, ℥℥, mixe them together: the next morning shee was let bloud in the basilike vaine, on that side where her paine was. Her diet was the same that was spoken of before. After meate, shee vsed a Lochsanum fit for the purpose, and so in short time she was cured.

Another woman cured of the same disease, by M. R.

First there was ministred vnto her this potion. R. the water of Carduus benedictus, ℔℥, Oleum vitrioli, q. s. to make it tarte like a Pomegranate. The next day she was let bloud in maner aforesaid, about ℥x. After she had bled, she tooke this potion following, fūe daies together, morning and euening: which caused her to sweate well, and thereupon she was quicklie cured.

The Diaphoreticall decoction.

Recipe, Cardui Benedicti, M ij, liquorice scraped, ℥iiij, figs v. Raisens ℥ij, sugar candie, ℥j℥, boile them in a sufficient quantitie of water, and straine them to drinke.

A plurisie broken with a potion.

For the breaking of his Aposteme, there was ministred vnto him Aromatico Leonardo, with honied water. The next day, the basilicke vaine, on the Pleuriticall side was opened.

opened. His drinke at dinner and supper was this decoction. Take Ilope dried, M j, Violets, P ij, fixe Figs, liquerice scraped, ℥ ss, Raisens ℥ iiij, boile them in ix. pound of water, till one pound be wasted, then straine this pectorall decoction, and vse it.

Another cured in this manner.

First he tooke Aromatico Leon. and therevpon dranke the water of Carduus Benedictus. The next day, they let him bloud on the same side where the paine was. His diet was moist and cooling, and he dranke Barlie water, mixed with sirupe of Roses, and oleum vitrioli, and shortly after was cured.

CHAP. XXIX.

An inward impostume, or bastard pluries, cured by W. M.

A Man hauing an impostume in his side, which would haue turned to the pluries, was thus cured. Take a good sweete Apple, and cut off the crowne, take out the core, and fill it with powder of Olibanum, binde on the crowne againe, and roste it vnder the embers, till it be soft. Then mixe with it three or foure drops of Oleum vitrioli, and let the patient eate it, and sweat thereon.

Also with the same medicine, at the same time, there was a boye helped, that had a plague sore on his neck.

*Paine in the side with a cough, cured by W. T.
after this manner.*

Recipe, Floris Sulphuris, ℥ ij. the extract of Enula Campana, ℥ j, Ireos and Liquorice, ana ℥ j. honie, q. s. to make it in forme of an electuarie. Before it be made vp, put thereto, ℥ ss, of Oleum sulfuris, and vse it morning and euening.

CHAP. XXXI.

Paine and winde in the bodie, cured by I. H.

A Certaine woman 28. yeares of age, being often troubled with a griping paine and winde in her bodie, was presently eased, by taking foure or five graines of Laudanum nostrum in Malmesey, with two or three drops of oile of Aniseeds. After this manner, diuerse persons haue beene cured. Prouided alwaies that the bodie be loose, else must it be mooued, either with some gentle clister or suppositarie.

The expelling of winde out of the bodie, by L. F.

THIS course following, hath beene diuerse times prooued most effectually, against winde in the stomack, and other parts of the bodie. First let them take a dose of Aromat. Leonardo. Then let them take morning and euening, halfe a dram of this composition, three or foure daies together, either in potion or pilles.

Rx. the essence of Gentian,  $\mathfrak{z} \text{ij}$ , the essence of Ginger, oile of Aniseed, Fennell seed, ana  $\mathfrak{D} \text{ss}$ , make thereof a masse, and keepe it to your vse.

CHAP. XXXII.

The cure of the Dropisie, performed by W. T.

A Man of three and fortie yeares old, troubled with the Dropisie, was in this manner cured. Take the rootes of blew Flower de Luce, sliced, and steeped in vinegar, three or foure houres; and then dried,  $\mathfrak{z} \text{ss}$ , the barke of Laurell rootes, so prepared, as much; the leaues of Sena, in powder, one spoonfull, Aniseed, and Ginger, ana  $\mathfrak{z} \text{j}$ , mixe them, and take of that powder euerie morning, from the waight of foure pence, till it giue you foure stooles a daie, continue herein so long, as you shall thinke it good.

CHAP.

CHAP. XXXIII.

The killing and expelling of wormes in the stomacke or elsewhere, by I. H.

AN infinite number of people, both young and old, haue beene cured thereof, with this composition following. Take the seed of Carduus sanctus, Wormeseed, Dittanie, Seimen Caulium, coraucerui vsti, coralline, vermium terrestrium, ana ʒß, mixe them in fine pouder, and giue thereof ʒß, either with honie, or sweete milke, in the morning and euening. Anoint also the stomack, and bellie downward, with this vnguent following, and applie a little vnto the nauell, with browne paper, and no doubt of it, within two or three daies, the patient shalbe cured. For it doth not onely kill the wormes, but causeth them to come forth by siege, making the bellie soluble, so that they shall haue two or three stooles in a day. The cataplasme or vnguent is this. Rx. Farina lupinorum, Aloes, centauria, myrrha, theriaca optima, ana ʒß, beat them into fine pouder, and make thereof an vnguent, with the iuice of peach leaues, and keepe it to your vse. Also two or three drops of Oleum vitrioli, being dronke with water of gramen, or such like, for three or foure daies, killeth wormes. Also ʒij, of Quintessencia solutio Phioran. dronke with ʒj, of sirupe of Roses, killeth the wormes, and expelleth them by siege.

CHAP. XXXIIII.

A quartaine of long continuance, cured by L. F.

First the patient was purged, with 12. graines of Lapetra Philosophale, Leon. Phioran. mixed with ʒß of good Mithridate; the next day he tooke of this decoction warme, ʒvj, and so continued 14 daies, morning and euening. Rx. Chamepiteos lbj, white wine lbviij, white honie lbj, distill them with a gentle fire, till fiue pound be come forth. Then let it coole, and filter that which remained in the vessel, & mixe it with that which was diſtilled afore, keepe it in a glaſſe, cloſe ſtopped, and uſe it. Alſo the raiſes of the backe, was anointed euery night with Balsamum artifiſic. Leon. Phior. and ſo he was well cured.

The second part, &c. as dropſie,

CHAP. XXXV.

An approoued remedie againſt the peſtilence, pluriſie, and quartaine.

Diuers people haue beene cured of theſe foreſaid diſeaſes, by taking a doſe of Turpetum Diaphoreticum, Paraceli, either with Amuletum Palmarij, or with ſome excellent good Mithridate, in the morning faſting, and ſweating therevpon. Sometime it is giuen with other potions or compositions, according to the diſeaſe.

CHAP. XXXVI.

*The ſwelling of the ſpleene, in a melancholick
perſon, cured by W. T.*

ACertaine melancholie man, was much grieued in his Amilt, heart, and head: but he was thus cured. Firſt he was twice purged, with  $\mathfrak{D}$  j. of Panchimagogon, and one  $\mathfrak{D}$  of the extract of Sena, mixed with ſirupe of Roſes, and two or three drops of oile of vitrioll. That done, he tooke a quart of poſſet Ale, made of white wine and Burnet, and dranke thereof, morning, noone, and night, a good draught, with halfe a ſpoonfull of Aqua Balsami Fiorauan. Alſo now and then, he tooke morning and euening, a toſte of white bread, ſtieped in Aquam Preſeruans, and within ten daies after, he purged againe, and ſo remained in good health.

CHAP. XXXVII.

Franticke feauers, for want of ſleepe, often cured by I. P.

MAny that were ſo greiuouſlie vexed, with a burning feauer, that they could not ſleepe, and were in maner fran-diseases, as poison, pestilence, &c.

41

frantick, haue taken fīue or sixe graines of Laudanum, with conserue of succorie flowres, and therewith were speedily deliuered out of their extremities.

Pestilent feauers, with great thirst cured, by I. H.

First they were purged once or twise with Aromatics Leonardo: then was the stomack comforted with some pectorall potion. That being done, there was Barlie water made with raisons, licorice, and coole herbes, if you may haue them. Then straine it cleane, and put therein as much Oleum vitrioli as will make it tarte, like a Pomegranate. Drinke thereof when you are drie, for it comforteth nature, swageth heate and thirst wonderfullie, openeth all obstructions, and defendeth the bodie from putrified feauers. If they be greeued with the headache, you shall cause them to be let bloud vnder the toung, cutting those vaines ouerthwart, and they shall presently be cured.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

Against poison, or the Pestilence, a diaphoreticall potion, by W. T.

Recipe Mirra, croci, ana  $\mathfrak{z}$  ij, Amuleti Palmarij  $\mathfrak{z}$  j, Spiritus vini lb j, Oleum piperis, Oleum gingiberis, ana  $\mathfrak{z}$  j, mixe them in a glasse, and giue thereof  $\mathfrak{z}$  ss in old Sack at once, against the pestilence or poison.

CHAP. XXXIX.

Signes of death in the Plague. W. K.

Take a quick Frog, and lay it with the bellie next the sore: if the partie will escape, the Frog will burst, in a quarter of an houre. Then lay on another, and this you shall do, till no more do burst, for they draw forth the venome. I haue beene told, that a dried tode will in better sort do the same. If none of the Frogs do burst, the partie will not

G

CHAP. XL.

Counsell, antidotes, and preseruatiues, against infectious aires, on the water, or land, by W. T.

YOU shall vse to chew, or hold in your mouth, a little of Essentia Angelica. Also it would be verie profitable to drinke three or fowre droppes of the same fasting. Also Oleum Camphoræ being dronke, effecteth the same. In like maner, aqua balsami Phiorauante, if it be dronke in the morning with wine, or Allome, preserueth a man from all poison and pestilent aires: and is a most singular remedie against surfets, or the pestilence. Also, if you be in any infected ship, or house, it were necessarie to weare a bag of Saffron vnder your arme pits to defend the heart.

Also it were very necessary, to drinke two or three drops, of the essence of saffron, for the same purpose.

Amuletum Palmarij, is also verie excellent, being taken in the morning fasting.

Dissolued pearle, eaten or dronke, defendeth the hart, purifieth the bloud, and reuiueth the spirites aboue all other things. You may make it in lozings, or drink it in any cordiall, in what quantitie you will.

CHAP. XLI.

An inueterate Gonorrhœa, either in man or woman, oftentimes cured, by W. T.

MANY haue bene cured of this, and such like infirmities, with this composition following. Among the rest, one Gentleman in Buckinghamshire, who was vexed therewith, aboue seuen yeares continually.

A Gentlewoman also, was so greuouslie afflicted with flux.

flux. albo, that she waxed lame, and went with a staffe: these were both cured in 12. dayes. But one thing must be remembered that if it come ex lue venerea, it were necessarie, first to be purged, and then to vse these pilles.

R $\bar{x}$ . magisterij perlarum, ʒj, Gumme Tragacanth, ʒß, fine bole Armeniack, terra sigillata vera, ana. ʒj. Laudanum nostrum, ʒj, make an hard masse, with Turpentine, and take thereof, ʒß, when you go to bed, vntill this quantitie be spent. In the meane time also, you shall annoint the reines of the backe, with this vnguent.

R $\bar{x}$ . unguentum album camphoratum, ʒij, saccarum Saturni, ʒij, misce, fiat unguentum.

An other for the same. W. T.

First purge them with Aromatico Leonardo, once or twice, then let them take, morning and euening, halfe a dramme of the pilles following: and annoint the reines of the backe, with the foresaid vnguent.

R $\bar{x}$ . Symphyti, crassule, ana ʒij. Magisterij perlarum, dissolved corall, ana ʒj, Laudani nostri, ʒj, nucis moschate, numero ij, boli Armen. terre sigillate vere sem. papau. albi, Tragacanth. ana ʒij, make them vp in a masse, with Turpentine and vse them in manner aforesayd.

An electuarie against Gonorrhœa,
by W. T.

A Certaine man, being troubled with a stinking Gonorrhœa, was in this order cured. First he was purged with Aromatico Leonardo: the next day, he tooke a pill or two, of Venice Turpentine, washed in plantaine water. That done, he vsed to eate morning and euening, the quantitie of an hazell nut, of this electuarie, vntill he was helped which was not long after.

Take the kernels of hazell nuttes, blaunched, ʒiiij,
G ij

44      The second part concerning the cures of magisterij perlarum, laudani nostri, ana ℥j, terra sigillata, boli, veri, sanguinis draconis in graine, ana ℥ij, Seminis Plantaginis, rasura Eboris, ana ℥j, nucis moschatae. 3. or 4. Cinamomi, ʒj, Saccari, ʒiij. mixe them well together, and vse it. Also in the meane time, he annointed the raines with the foresaid vnguent.

CHAP. XLII.

The immoderate fluxe menstruall. suppressed
or staied, by W. T.

A Certaine woman, being greuouslie weakened with that disease, and hauing great heate and paine in her bodie, was thus cured. Take the rootes of Orpine, and comferie, thinne sliced, Clarey q. v. boile them with a chicken, and with that broth make Almond milke, and to euerie handfull of Almondes, adde one ℥ of Landanum nostrum, Grinde them well together, and drinke thereof morning and euening. Also you shall anoint the raines and greued parts, with the vnguent mentioned in the Chapter aforegoing.

Another against the same.

I Was informed, that the powder of a land Frog, bound about the womans neck, doth stay the foresaid fluxe.

CHAP. XLIII.

A Fluxe stopped by G. F.

Dissolue Baie salt in Malmesey, and therewith wash the soles of your feete, and in three or foure dayes it will staie the Fluxe. Diuerse Souldiars in the warres haue beene cured thereof, by setting their fundament in warme Horse dung. Also the pouder of red Roses, dronke in Red wine, is verie profitable for the stopping of the Fluxe.

Blondie

*Bloudie Fluxe of long continuance,
cured by W. T.*

REcipe, conserue of red Roses, Marmilade of quinces, Electuarie of Sulphur, of Leon. Fioran. his description, ana ℥ij, Amuletum Palmarij, ℥ss, essentia croci, Laudanum nostrum, ana ℥ss, aqua preseruantis, ℥ss, oleum vitrioli, & sulfuris, ana ℥ss, mixe them, and take thereof, ℥j, morning and euening.

CHAP. XLIIII.

The cure of the Hemorrhoides or Piles, performed by I. H. and many other.

TAke Mullen, and frie it with Butter, and therewith anoint the part diuers times.

The oile of Egges is a notable remedie, to withdrawe the said infirmitie.

Balsamum sulfuris, anointed vpon them, doth with great speed and good successe, cure them: this also hath beene oftentimes prooued very excellent.

If they be anointed with Oleum Tartari fetens, it drieth them vp in short time. But first it were necessarie, to purge the bodie of the melancholike originall of that disease, both by vomit and siege.

Some vse to take them away, by applying a caustick vnto them.

The cure of Ficus in ano, ex lue venerea, performed by I. P.

MAny haue beene sore troubled with warts or blathers in the fundament, which haue in verie short time beene cured, by anointing them with Balsamum Tartari fetens. Among other men, there was a strong lustie fellow fiftie yeares old, of complexion melancholike, which was beastly beraied with the Pockes, about whose fundament, or Longanon, there remained 14 or 12 growing, whercof 46 The second part, &c. concerning prouoking menstrues.

 some were so big as a little figge, all of them did runne or yeeld, a lothsome yellow sanies or matter. This man was cured, with Balsamum Tartari fœtens: without any payne to him and the warts were so dried, that they were pulled of, with a payre of mullets: after which he remained whole.
 This man was healed in Bedfordshire.

CHAP. XLV.

The prouoking of menstrues,
 by I. H.

BY this composition following, many more then it is here requisite to speake of, haue had their menstrues prouoked, and many other obstructions opened: especially if it be giuen with brothes, liquors, or medicaments, appropriate thereunto.

R<sup>x</sup>. extractionem Chamomille, Calendula, Gentiana, Brio-
nia, Chamepitos, Peonia, Centaurij, Iuniperi, Genista, Sa- bina, Spicanardi, Ruta, Melissa, Chelidonia, Philipendula, Matricaria, ana ʒj, Essentia Zedoaria, Croci, ana ʒß,
Mirabolanorum, Castorei, ana ʒß, mixe them, and keepe it close. The dose is from ʒj, to ʒj, vpon extremitie, either in pilles or conuenient electuaries. It must be ministred foure or fiue dayes before the new Moone, and as manie after, with the infusion of Sena, or in sirupe of roses, for the intent aboue named.

To prouoke menstrues, in melancholike people. W. H.

TAke of the extract of Helleborus niger, fiue graynes, Panchinagogon 15. graynes, make it into three small pilles, and annoint the pilles, with Oleum anisi, and thereof take once or twise. After that take this composition following.

Take of the Essence of Gentian, Sabina, Angelica, ana

ana ʒ j, Essencia Croci, ʒ j, Castorei ʒ ʒ, mixe them, and make them vp in forme of pilles, and take thereof ech night, when you go to bed, ʒ j, either in pilles, or dissolued in some conuenient liquor, about the foresaid time of the Moone. A verie melancholike maiden, was cured in this manner.

CHAP. XLVI.

Suffocation and paynes of the Matrix, with retention of menstrues, cured, by I. P.

R Ecipe extract. Brionia, ʒ j ʒ, the leaues of Sena, ʒ ʒ, ginger, ʒ j, Cinamon, ʒ j, sugar, ʒ j, lay them to infuse one night, in a pint of warme whay, made of goats milke. Then strayne it, and drinke thereof three mornings warme, about the new Moone; keeping a warme and drying diet, your wine must be infused with rosemarie flowres.

Another that hath cured, the rising of the mother, by R. C.

R Ecipe the flowres or buds of a walnut tree, in May, giue the patients as much thereof to drinke, as wil lye on a groat, and with two or three doses they shall be cured.

Also if you giue. ʒ j, of oleum succinum album, in wine, it will presently cure the same disease, a thing oftentimes proued with good successe.

CH P. XLVII.

To prouoke vrine, and to cause the laundies to flow. W. K.

THe powder of earth wormes, dronke with white wine, pouoketh vrine and cureth the laundies and Tertians.

Also gray sope, ʒ ij, bay salt, finely beaten, ʒ j, mixe them, and therewith annoint the nauell, and bellic.

48 The second part, concerning the cures of internall
Also Castile Sope being drunke, with warme wine, prouoketh Vrine.

Also, if you shall applie quick earth-wormes, vpon a whit blow, called Panaricium (of some Panaricies) they will cure the same.

CHAP. XLVII.

To prouoke Vrine, and to heale other obstructions, a most excellent, and prooued receit, by I. H. and many other.

THis composition of artificiall salts, breaketh, and (after a sort) consumeth all tartarous diseases, as hath beene verie often and trulie experimented by diuerse and sundrie persons: yea it preuaileth much against the Gowte, being taken with potions, electuaries, and sirrups, appropriate vnto the particular ministrations.

R<sup>x</sup> the salt of Radish, of Eringus, Beane stalkes, Broome, Alizanders, Iuniper, Ashe, Aniseed, Fennell, Camomill, VVormwood, Vrine, Tartar Christalline, ana, mixe them in a warme mortar, and keepe it close, and in a drie place, for in the aire and moisture it will quickly resolue. The dose heereof, is from halfe a scruple, to an whole scruple, and may be verie safelie administred, without perill, to any age or sexe: vpon good occasions, and at times conuenient, after that the bodie is prepared for the same purpose.

The end of the second part of this Collection.

A SUPPLEMENT, OR ADDI-TION, VNTO THE FOR-MER COLLECTION.

This Appendix or Addition, containeth both Philosophicall discourses, of the causes and cures, of diuers and sundrie diseases: as also many pithie discourses, of the vertues and vse, of many vegetables, animals, &c. culled and translated, out of the Phisickes and Chirurgerie, of S<sup>r</sup>. Leonardo Fiorauante, and left to passe forth in Print, with this Collection.

CHAP. I.

Of payne in the head.

He paine in the head, is an infirmitie, whose cause vntill this time hath not beene sufficiently knowē: as by mine owne experiēce I shall proue vnto you.

All or the most part of Phisicians, in the world, do hold this position, that payne in the head, is no other thing, then vapors arising from the stomacke: and ascend vnto the head, which do offend membrana, whereupon ensueth payne. Herein they speake some part of the truth. But (in my iudgement) they are not yet come perfectly, to know all the cause of this infirmitie. For I see that in the cures, which these Theorickes wold performe, it falleth not out, according to their expectation and desire, for that they know not the whole or the principall cause of the maladie, therefore what certaine medecine can they finde out to cure the infirmitie? They may perchāce (as the blind man hits the crow) helpe, they know not what, which thing I speake not, to backbite or iniurie any of thē:

H

but to tell them of loue that I beare to them and others, the whole and true cause of that, whereof heretofore they haue bene ignoraunt . The first cause is putrified bloud, in Leonichie, the second is, the vapors that ascend from the stomacke and offend the head : the third is, the humiditie or moisture, betweene the skinne and the flesh. So that the causes are three, and the remedies as many, to dissolue the antecedent causes . I haue now shewed thee, the originall and roote of the payne in the head; about which thou shalt neuer more neede to beate thy head, or breake thy braines, either in seeking the Aphorismes of Hypocrates, the Commentarie of Galene, or the authoritie of Auicene: for in these foure or few wordes I haue said all . Now of the cure of this disease, as I haue experimented the same an infinite sort of times in my life : which way soeuer the cause commeth, worke thou after this manner, and thou shalt neuer sustaine blame, or discredit.

When the payne in the head is confirmed, and that thou canst finde no helpe, by common Theorick or Practike, do these things following . First let them bloud on Leonichie, cutting it ouerthwart, and let the patient spat as much as he can . Then the next morning, let them take our Aromatico fasting . The next day let the head be shauen, and lay thereon an attractiue plaister, drawing out the humiditie: whereof I haue made mention in my Caprici medicinale . In the end, cause them to neese, and hereby all the payne in the head will cease.

CHAP. II.

Of the Catarrhe, and rume in the head.

THE Catarrhe, is a moist vapor, which assaulteth the head, and afterward falleth downe agayne, into the stomacke: where it ingrosseth and corrupteth : This moisture, hath his beginning of the moisture of the lungs, and vntill such time, as the lungs be discharged thereof, the Catarrhe will continue in his force . This infirmitie raigneth more in flegma-flegmaticke, and melancholike bodies, then in any of other constitutions. Such as are troubled with it, are not long liued, because their lungs consume, by little and little, and thereupon they are troubled with the Ptisicke: and consequently they perish, if they be not quickly releued. I will now shew thee a rare secret to cure the same.

Take Pulmonaria and Sena, that is fresh, and new; infuse them in wine and water, ouer a small or gentle fire, till the wine haue drawne out the vertue. Then straine it, and put thereunto our Quintaessence, & keepe it close in a glasse, let the patiēt drinke thereof euery morning ʒ iij, luke warme, for twentie dayes together: let him eat good nourishing meates, for they agree well with this disease. If the patient be not too farre spent, you shall see your cure performed in short time. In the meane while, if the patient be weake, you shall giue him new layd egges, and good white wine. If the humiditie be perceiued, not to be quite expelled and euacuated, then giue him our Aromatico: afterward comfort him agayne, with restoratiues and cordials, to make him strong, and no doubt by the helpe of God he shall be cured. This methode, of curing this infirmitie, differeth from the common course that Phisitians take, which would cure it, with diet, bleeding, and mollifying liniments, and causing them to spat, and such like, which are meanes rather to augment the Catarrhe, then to diminish the same.

The second course, to cure the descension: that commeth from the head to the stomacke.

VSe these fiue things if you will cure this disease: first our Electuario Angelica, 2 Quintaessence solutine, 3 our pillula pro descenso, 4 *Vnguent*s for the stomacke and head, 5 our Quintaessence vegetable. The electuarie clenseth the head and stomacke, the Quintaessence solutine euacuateth the body, the pilles take away the cause of the descension: the vnguent dries, and the vegetable Quintaessence prefer-ueth the body from all ill and noisome infirmities. The Electuarie must be taken first in the morning : of the Quinta- essence solutine, you must take a spoonfull, in the morning, in a little broth and suger keeping a reasonable good diet: and do this, foure or six dayes. Then take the pilles in the euening, and in the meane time, annoint the head and stomacke, with Oleum cera, and drinke euery morning, a little of our Quintaessence, which if you do vse continually ( by the blessing of God vpon it ) there is no doubt, but the body shall be free from many troublesome maladies.

There was a certaine woman, of the age of 58. yeares, who being greatly troubled, with a Catarrhe: was cured by the vse of our Aqua preseruans, morning and euening, and by annointing the stomacke with balsamo.

One that was affected with a Catarrhe, and a stich in the side, was thus cured. He tooke our Aromatico twise. Then he tooke euery morning a spoonfull of our Quintaessence solutine, with the broth of a capon for seuen or eight dayes together: and euery night when he went to bed, he annoin-ted his stomacke, with oleum incompressibile, and thereby was soone after cured.

A woman that had great payne in her head and stomack, and had her menstrues stopped; with losse of her appetite, was thus helped.

First she tooke two doses of our Pillula Angelica, that done she tooke euery morning, a spoonfull of Quintaes- sencia solutino, with broth and suger, for fiue or sixe mornings together. After that, she tooke euery morning, one spoonfull of our Aqua preseruans: whereupon in short time after she was cured.

A contusion in the head.

A Certaine man, had a great fall from an horse, wherewith he bruised his head most greeuously, who was cured in foure dayes; by annointing the place, with Oleum
benedictum nostrum.

The taking away, or healing of the white scall.

THis noysome maladie, is perfectly cured, by purging the patients with our Aromatico, and annointing the head with our Oleum Philosophorum.

Also the Artificiall balsame of our description: doth the like, and Oleum benedictum nostrum effecteth the same.

Payne in the eyes with great dimnesse of sight.

A Certaine man that had great payne in his eyes, and was almost blind, recouered his sight; by letting bloud, vnder the toung. The next day he tooke Aromatico once: after that he vsed our Quintaessence solutine, seuen or eight dayes together, and euery night he annointed his stomacke, with Oleum cera rectified: then was dropped into his eyes, our Quintaessence for the eyes, and thereof was he well cured.

An vnguent for sore eyes.

TAke rose water, fenell, and eufrage water, ana, put therein a small quantitie of Verdi grece: & boile it a little on the fire. Then let it settle, till it be cleare, and powre it off. With this water, see that you wash Anxungia porcina seuen or eight times: and of that, put a little into the eye, when ye go to bed.

To cure or stay the spatting of bloud.

ONe that spat bloud, was cured in ten dayes, by drinking the liquour of honie, morning and euening. Another was healed by drinking the decoctiō of mint in vinegar, another by drinking of Crocus martis.

The description and cure of the Squinancie.

THis disease, is a windie moisture, and a suffocation of bloud, as you may see by experience, that such as are possessed therewith, haue a great alteration, or many chaunges

54      The first part of the Appendix, concerning of feuers; with a swelling in the throte: and many times if it be not quickly holpen, it will choke them, and this is the cure thereof. You shall giue them  $\mathfrak{z}$  j, of the powder of a wild Bores tooth, with  $\mathfrak{z}$  iij, of oyle of linseede, and forthwith by the helpe of God they shalbe greatly eased.

The description and manifold cures, of the disease called Scrophula, or forunculi, which some do call waxing
kernels, but rather the kings euill.

THe Scrophula or waxing kernels (so called of some) which vse to come in the throte, or other partes of the bodies, of young children, do arise and are caused, of great quantitie of melancholike humors, because that doth for the most part raigne in persons, that are weake of complexion. For you may easily see that such as are vexed with that infirmitie: are not very quicke spirited. These Scro- phula, are a long time ere they will come to suppuration: and before they breake, and when they are broken, they cause excessiue payne, and are hard to be cured. For all infirmities that come of melancholie, are troublesome to cure or resolute, as you may see in the quartaine and such like. But here I will shew thee a secret, to cure these Scrophula. First you must remoue the cause, and then cure the effectes: for otherwise it were impossible to cure them with outward me-decines. This melancholie is purged, with our sirupe against melancholie, which you must vse eight or ten dayes.
The dose is about  $\mathfrak{z}$  4 cold. That done giue them our Aro- matico, which clenseth the head, and stomacke, and purifieth the bloud. As touching locall medicines, to breake it, you shall lay thereon our caustike 24. houres: which mortifieth and drieth, for it will draw forth a great deale of moisture.
After this, annoint it with our magno licore, vntill the escare be fallen out: and when it is mundified, applie thereon the cerote of Gualtifredo di Medi, & vse no other medecine, for it will incarnate, and cicatrise, without scare.

Another cure for Scrophula.

A Certaine young boy of 14. yeares, of complexion cholericke, and melancholicke, who had Scrophula in his throte, on both the sides, was cured thus. The first medicine that he tooke, was the infusion of Rhabarb, with the trochiskes of Agarick, and acetum squilliticum, and water of maidenhaire, mixed together, which he vsed by the space of ten dayes. Then was laied vpon the Scrophula, a plaister of cerote magistrale with Cantarides: which drew forth the malignitie of the vlcer, and great store of Sanes, being applied for 15. dayes together. This done, I gaue him the decoction of Salsa parilla, with a good diet, for twentie dayes together. Then I applied vnto the sore a cerote of Gualtifredo de Medi, which in a short time cured him, that had bene vexed with them foure yeares before.

Another for the same.

A Nother which was a maide of 13. yeares of age, was vexed with Scrophula in her throte, which was also in this manner cured. First I gaue her the extract of Elleborus niger, with mel rosarum; which doth very effectually purge the melancholicke humor. That done, I gaue her our sirope against the melancholick humor, for eight or ten dayes together: and applied vnto the sores an vnguent of Lytarge, boiled with the powder of Scrophularia: thus was she in short time cured.

Another against Scrophula.

Recipe Verdigrece, Pelitorie of Spayne, docke roote, the iuice of leekes, of the herbe Scrophularia, ana, mixe them, and lay on lint, and applie it vnto the Scrophula, but take some care thereof.

CHAP. IIIL.

Of Panaricium, or Panaricies, called the whit blow.

THis greuous and intollerable maladie, (as those know well that haue felt them) commeth on the end of the finger; and is an infirmitie, bred in the liuer, whereof nature being willing to discharge her selfe, sendeth it to the extreme parts of the fingers: and most commonly it commeth to the finger next the thombe, but seldome in the other. The reason or cause whereof is hidden, saue that we may coniecture (as we haue said before) an accident in the liuer, which nature sendeth forth vnto those parts to ease her selfe. When it commeth to the end of the finger, that it can go no further; it causeth a sharpe and excessiue payne: and the accident comming vnto that place, not hauing passage, is so hote, that in short time it putrifieth the sinewes, muscles, and cartilages, and in the end rotteth both flesh and bone. The secret of this grieve, is not commonly knowne, of the most Surgeons: who with all their learning, cannot deuise to cure it, as it ought to be cured. The most part of such, as haue that infirmitie, lose their finger: but if thou wilt quickly helpe them, follow this methode.

First let them bleed on the liuer veyne: then let them be well purged. Afterward dresse the finger, with oleum sulfuris: which will cause some paine, neuerthelesse (to haue some ease) you must abide it. The next day dresse it with Magnolice, vntill it be whole, which will be in short time, as I haue often proued.

CHAP. V.

Of greenous vlcers, in womens breasts.

First they must be touched with oleum sulfuris: then make this vnguent. Take of the yolkes of egges,  $\mathfrak{z} \text{ij}$ , turpentine, tine, butter, barlie flowre, honie of roses, ana ℥ss: incorporate them all in a morter, and therewith dresse them, vntill they be whole. But if they come of any kinde, or spice of the pocks, this vnguent will be to very small purpose. But then shall you dresse them, with our Vnguento magno: which is appropriate vnto the disease, and looke that you purge them with our Aromatico.

CHAP. VI.

*Of the disease called Asthma, and
the cure thereof.*

THIS disease, which is called the Ptisque, is a certaine infirmitie, contained in the lungs, which doth harden and driethem in such manner, that such as are troubled therewith, cannot fetch their breath. It proceedeth of adustion of the bloud, that cannot runne in the veynes: and so the lungs lacking sustenance, worketh that effect. This disease is cured foure manner of wayes. First you shall let them bloud vnder the rounge cutting, those veynes ouerthwart, and suck them as much as they can: for it euacuateth and openeth the opilation of the bloud, and easeth the lungs of all that euill matter which offendeth. Secōdly you shall giue them a dose of Aromatico, which euacuateth the stomacke, of all euill qualities, that offend the lungs. The third is, to let them eate for a moneth together, euery morning ℥j, of our Electuario de Althea. The fourth, to annoint the stomacke, euery night with Magno licore. But euery ten dayes, you must take a dose of our Electuario Angelica, whereby thou shalt helpe them quickly. You must also keepe a sober diet: refraining fish, porke, slimie things, spice, baked meates, cheese and such like, which nourish grossly, and do infect the bloud.

93 The first part, &c. concerning the cures of Dropſie.

CHAP. VII.

To know the Dropſie confirmed in a man the cure whereof, is ſhewed in the xxxij. Chapter of the ſecond part of the Collection.

THere are three ſignes or tokens, of a confirmed Dropſie. Firſt looke whether the tounge be white and cold: then, whether the yard be ſhronke into the bellie, and laſtly if there do any veines appeare, on the bellie. If you perceiue theſe, they are infallible declarations of a confirmed Dropſie.

CHAP. VIII.

An excellent remedie, againſt the Wormes.

YOU ſhall giue the patient  $\mathfrak{z}ij$ , of our Vnguento magno, to drinke with Mel roſarum, three mornings together; annoint the noſe thrilles therewith, and in three dayes, they will be expelled were they neuer ſo many.

CHAP. IX.

*Of the hardneſſe of the milt, and the
cure thereof.*

THe ſplene or milt is hardned, by reaſon of ſuperfluous humiditie, that it taketh from the liuer, and lungs. Therefore if you will helpe this infirmitie, it were neceſſarie, to uſe medecines abſterſiue, and drying, which thou ſhalt do thus. Firſt giue them our Aromatico, then let them uſe this Electuarie, which is of maruailous vertue in that operation. Take Crocus Martis, Scolopendria, ana  $\mathfrak{z}j$ , Spiknard, lapis lazuli, ana  $\mathfrak{z}ij$ , Cinamon,  $\mathfrak{z}ss$ , mixe them, and make an Electuarie thereof with purified hony, and take thereof euery morning one ſpoonfull, and euery night, (two houres before ſupper) an other ſpoonfull, and annoint the out-ward ward part part, where the greese is, with our Balsamo artifice. and in short time, the disease shall be cured.

Another remedie, very effectuell, for the former disease.

L Et them bloud on the two veynes, vnder the tounge. That done, mixe mustardseede with the vrine of a boy, and lay it betweene two clothes: and applie it to the part affected, one night, and then (if thou feele not good ease) vse it agayne till the disease be gone. Also the decoction of oke, helpeth the swelling of the milt.

CHAP. X.

Of the Gonorrhoea, or running of the raynes, and the cure.

THis disease, is a corruption, caused of the superfluous vse of women, that are infected therewith: for such men as haue knowledge of them, they receiue the said corruption which afterward commeth forth of the yard, with great payne and difficultie in making water; and moreouer in the night, when that part is erected, it causeth great torment: which for fifteen or twentie dayes, causeth extreme payne. This is the beginning of the French pocks, a fit sawce for that sweet sinne of Lecherie. It bringeth most commonly payne in the interiour partes, or payne in the raynes, armes, and legges: in somuch that in fine, it commeth to that fowle disease. For such as haue this Gonorrhoea, neuer suspecting or fearing the afterclaps, suffer their disease, to grow on further and further till their cure will very hardly or neuer be accomplished. Therefore I wish euery man, to seeke helpe in time, least by letting it passe; in the end, it turne to his destruction. The cure is as followeth.

First you shall giue them our Aromatico, once in white wine. Then morning and euening, for seuen or eight dayes, vse this potion following: annointing also the raynes, and

The first part, &c. concerning the
those parts, with our Aqua fatida, being cold, and in short time they shalbe healed.

Rx. the whites of foure or fīue new layd egges, ℥ij of fine sugar, ℥ij of rose water, mixe them well, and drinke it morning and euening. This is a rare secret, and often proued, the drinke must be dronke cold.

CHAP. XI.

Of the Hemerhoides, and their cure.

THe Hemerhoides, are an alteration in the Hemerhoidall veynes, caused of a corrupt and putrified humor, whereof nature being willing to discharge her selfe, sendeth forth by those veynes vnto the extreme or outward parts, where it cannot passe through, and causeth the alteration and inflation that is called the Hemerhoides. This corruption and putrification, is caused of the euill qualitie of the liuer, which corrupteth the bloud, and is the cause of all this inconuenience. Commonly the originall and beginning thereof, is caused of the pocks, a thing that must be considered of in the cure. Now for the cure, it were necessarie to helpe the liuer, to purifie the bloud, to alter the Hemerhoides, and to discharge nature of that impediment. First therefore, giue them our Electuario Angelica, the next day, they shall take our Sirupo solutiuo, whereof they shall take fīue or sixe doses.
Then let them annoint the Hemerhoides, with our Cau-stike, once or twise, and they shall soone after be cured.

Of the diuers sortes, and diuers effectes of the Hemerhoides, and their cure.

BY reason of this disease, that commeth alwayes at the End of Intestino, or Longanon, some haue maruailous payne about the fundament, some burne wonderfully, and others do scald: which commeth, because of the good or bad qualities in some, more then in other some, as experience sheweth. For (as I said) some haue such a burning, that they can

can take no rest, some haue such payne, as they cannot sit, some haue it so scalding hote, that it is intollerable. Though this infirmitie is more hurtfull in one complexion, then in an other, and the cure hard: yet you shall cure them in this manner. First giue them Aromatico, then purge the body five or six times, with our Sirupo solutuo. Then giue him our fume at the lower parts, three or foure times, and then annoint the parts with our Balsamo artific. for that will drie, and take away the payne altogether, and the patient shall be surely healed.

There are diuers kinds of Hemerhoides, but two in principall. The one sort is in the fundament, and causeth great payne when they go to the stoole. The other sort cometh forth of the fundament, and are not so paynfull as the first. To cure those within the fundament, you shall giue the patient eight or ten dayes together, our Sirupo magistrale warme, then let them take our Aromatico, once, and vse clisters, wherein is put halfe an ounce of Aqua reale Phiorauante at a time, and so thou shalt helpe them. The best way for those that are come forth, is to make incision, or to make a little hole in them, that the bloud (which is putrified) may come forth, and so by euacuation thou shalt helpe them. Also you shall vnderstand, that vomiting is very necessarie in the cure of both sortes, because it openeth the veynes. Also Oleum ouorum, doth ease the payne of the Hemerhoides very greatly: so doth the oyle of figges, if you annoint them therewith. ¶ The tooth of an horsefish bein gworne in a ring on the finger after the body is purged taketh them away by a secret and hidden qualitie, a thing proued more then an hundred times.

CHAP. XII.

Of the cure of such, as were troubled with suffocation of the Matrix.

A Certaine womā, affected therewith hauing much paine & greefe, in her stomacke, was cured, by taking a dose
I iij

62 The first part, &c. of suffocat. of the Matrix, & rupture of our Electuario Angelica. Then she vsed our sirupe against paynes of the mother, eight or ten dayes, and annointed her stomacke, with Magno licore euery night.

A certaine young woman, afflicted in manner afore said, wanted also her naturall sicknesse, and began to loose her naturall heate: so that nature could not digest, the superfluous matter in her body, was thus helped. First she tooke our Electuario Angelica, and euery night, annointed her stomacke, nosethrilles, and pulses, with Magno licore, and euery morning dronke of our Quintaeſſence, and so was cured.

CHAP. XIII.

To cure a rupture in the beginning.

IN euery ten dayes once, giue them our Aromatico, and euery morning fasting giue them  $\mathfrak{z}$  j, of white Tartar, in water or wine; and two houres before supper, you shall take the like: Let your bread be rye, also you must weare a trusse fit for that purpose, and vse this remedie following. Take of the spirite of wine  $\mathfrak{z}$  xij, frankincense Olibanum, mastiche sarcocolla, and  $\mathfrak{z}$  ss, infuse them in the said Aqua vite, and therewith wash the rupture twise a day, then presently cast thereon, the powder of Bislingua, and the herbe Balsamina, and lay thereon a cloth, wet in the said water, and bind on the trusse so hard, as he may possiblie abide it; and hereby shalt thou heale any great rupture, in an hundred dayes, but see that you keepe a diet accordingly.

Another for the same.

TAke very stiffe and thicke paper well gummed, chew it in thy mouth till it be soft: then lay it vpon the rupture, and weare thereon a trusse fit for the purpose.

Some vse to steepe the paper in lye, and wring the same out till it be drie, and applie it to the rupture, chaunging it once in 24. houres.

CHAP.

CHAP. XIII.

Of retention of Urine, and the cure thereof.

THe retention of urine, ariseth of many causes, one is grauel, that stoppeth the cōduits, where it should passe, another is the want or weaknesse of the vertue expulsive; so that nature cannot expell; another is a carnositie, which is an alteration caused of corrupt and putrified humors, which do so restrain the powres, and urine, that it cannot passe. There is another, and that is viscositie of the reynes, so grosse, that it hindreth the urine from passing. Another cause, which is too too common, is the Gonorrhœa, when it chaungeth into Stranguria, that it is a stopping or choking of the conduites, that carrie the veyne to the bladder. All these foresaid causes, proceede of one originall, euen of the distemperature of nature, whereof if you aske the reason, you shall vnderstand, that it ariseth of that filthy beginning, the French pocks. That which moueth me to beleue it, is the obseruation thereof diuers and sundry times, for I haue cured many that were infected with the pockes, which were troubled, some with Carnosity (before spoken of) some with grauell, some with debilitie of the vertue expulsive, some with Gonorrhœa; all which when I had cured of the pockes: the other distemperatures were therewith also cured. For that disease, is the cause of twentie mischies, and the reason, why many Phisicians, make a long cure of the former distemperatures, is for that they know not the mayne and principall cause of them. But now I will shew thee a true and excellent manner of curing the retention of urine, which way soeuer it commeth.

First giue them a dose of Aromatico, then giue vnto them our Syrupo solutino, eight or ten dayes, but in any wise keepe no straight diet, but a good gouernement as you do most commonly vse: and eate such meate as pleaseth thy stomacke best: cause them also to sweate, and in short time, thou shalt thoroughly cure them.

CHAP. XV.

A most excellent remedie to cure the difficultie of urine.

THE difficultie or retentiō of vrine, caused diuers wayes, as of grauell, viscositie, exulceration, &c. is in this sort very well and safely cured. Whē the cause of this difficultie of vrine, is in the reynes or kidneies; so that it be not a stone in the kidneies: or some great store of grauell; see that thou worke thus.

Rx. Rognoni of a male hare, boile it in good wine, when it is well boiled, stampe it small, and passe it thorough a strainer with the said liquor wherein it was boiled. Remember that when you boile it, there must not remaine much liquor in the vessell. Then take the said matter, that you strained, and put thereto as much purified honie, and boyle it on a soft fire, vntill it come to the forme of an Electuarie. When it is boiled, put thereunto, for euerie pound of that Electuarie, these things following, made into fine powder, of Lignum aloes, of Cinamon, ana ℥ j, cloues, saffron, ana ℥ j, muske, graines foure, Aqua rosarum ℥ j, our Quintae essence ℥ jss. Incorporate these well together, while it is warme, and keepe it in a glasse, close stopped. And when you will vse it, you must first take a dose of our Electuario Angelica, and while you vse the Electuarie, remember to annoint the reynes, with our Aqua fetida, when you go to bed. Of the Electuarie you must take ℥ j, in the morning, and fast thereon foure houres, and vse some exercise, and in short time, thou shalt see a maruailous good worke performed. For the reynes will be strengthened, the viscositie will be resolued, the powres will be opened, and the vrine will be expelled, and clenfed, all which are effectes, necessarie for him to regard, that will with honestie and credite, helpe the former maladie.

Another often proued.

If thou wilt presently helpe one, that cannot make water,

ter by reason of wind, viscositie, or other greuous cause, vexing the partie: annoint their reynes, and all the priuie partes, with our Balsamo Artificiato, and keepe them verie warme, and forthwith they shall make water, to their great satisfaction.

Retention of the Vrine, with stitch in the side.

One was in verie short time cured of these infirmities, after he had taken our Aromatico: and annointed him, in manner aboue specified, with our Balsamo Artificiato.

CHAP. XVI.

The swelling of the legge, and foote, cured in manner following.

First the patient tooke one dose of Aromatico, then he vsed our Quintaeſſence ſolutine, three or foure mornings together, in a little broth. That done, he dronke euerie morning, a little of our Quintaeſſence vegetabile, fasting, and euerie night, he annointed his legge, with Oleum Philoſophorum noſtrum. Also now and then he tooke a dose of Pilule Angelica, to keepe the body ſoluble, he kept a reaſonable good diet, he vsed not much walking, ſo that verie ſhortly after he was well cured.

CHAP. XVII.

Of Chilblaines and their cures.

YOU ſhall vnderſtand, that Chilblaines (as we terme them) are cauſed of no other thing, then of humors dried, and reſtrained in our bodies. For in the winter, when it is cold, the pores do ſhut ſo cloſe together, that the humor cannot paſſe, or come forth, neither by ſweat, nor other exhalation or expiration. For that cauſe, the humors in a young man (who is hote of complexion) may not be kept in; for then nature (which would eaſe her ſelfe) ſendeth that exhalation, vnto the extreme parts of the bodie, that is vnto the handes and feete; where remaining there is caused that alteration: and in processe of time, the skinne doth open, and the humor goeth forth; but cannot heale, till the spring, when warme weather commeth in. Howbeit I haue found out a secret to cure them quicklie, and with great ease. First let them bloud, then giue them a dose of our Electuario Angelica: after that let them take our Syrapo solutio, six or seuen dayes together not keeping any straight diet or rule. After this annoint them with Oleum philosophorum de cera & terebinthina, at night when they go to bed: and do thus one weeke at the least, and then no doubt thou shalt cure them as I haue often proued. Also the oyle and water of franckinsence, will do the like.

CHAP. XVIII.

*Of Cornes on the feete, and the manner
to take them away.*

THe cornes that come on the feete, are a kinde of hard tumor, or thicke excrescence, caused of corrupt and putrified humors, whereof nature being willing to discharge herselfe, sendeth them to the lower part of the feete, whereout because they cannot passe, there do they make residence: ingendring that kinde of tough excrescence, which is greuous and painfull. Many times, the cause hereof, ariseth of that noysome disease, Morbus Gallicus, as some write, and then must it be remedied with medicamentes appropriate thereunto. But if they come otherwise, then to take them away follow this order. When they are in their greatest state, and cause most payne, cut them vntill they bleed, then annoint them with our Balsamo Artificiato applying it so hote, as you may suffer it; thereupon go to bed. Then touch them once or twise with Oleum sulfuris, and annoint them with Oleum Philosophorum de terebinthina & cera, vntill they be whole.

Some

Some take the iuice of Semperuivum, and annoint the cornes therewith. Then they take wormwood, and lay it vpon an hote tile stone, and sprinkle it with strong vinegar, and being hote, bind it vpon the Cornes, and in three or foure times so doing (as I haue bene crediblie certified) the Cornes will be taken away.

CHAP. XIX.

*Of an infirmitie that commeth on the fingers ends,
and in the feete, vnder the nayles,
and the cure of it.*

MAny men are greatlie troubled herewith, and in such manner, as thereby they are made altogether vnfit to go. It commeth on the great toe, vnder the naile, or the side of the nayle: for the most part, and a man would thinke, that the nayle grew in the flesh, but it is not so, for the flesh groweth vpon the nayle, though this infirmitie appeare not, to be a thing of great importance (whereof the aunciēt writers haue made little mention) yet is it a thing greatly to be regarded. For many great personages, that liue easily, and are tormented with the gout, haue also this greefe in those parts: but the order to cure them is this. First you shall cut the nayle, on that part where it most greeueth them; then take it away which you may do easily, without any great payne to the patient: for the nayle is already separated from the greeued place. Thus when the nayle is takē away, touch it with our Caussticke, whereof mention is made in our treatise of the plague. Let it so remaine three dayes together: thē dresse it euery day, with Magno licore, vntill it be whole, which will be in a very short time.

CHAP. XX.

Of Erisipela, and the cure thereof.

THis disease (as experience sheweth) is caused of an hote and fierie moisture, arising in the face, armes and legges;
K ij.

for where it is, the powers and pores are stopped, that the said moisture, cannot haue expiration, whereupon cometh tumor: as also a shutting & closing vp of thole pores, by meanes of the ordinarie annointing the, with fats, oyles, &c. or other cold things: a common course vsed of common Surgeons. Against this there cannot be found a more present remedy, then the spirite of wine, or Aqua ardens, or bathing it with hote water: and if you wash the parts affected with our Quintaessence, the powres will be opened, and it penetrateth and assubtilateth that humiditie, causing it to come forth.

Note.

Also you shall finde, that by drinking our Quintaessence, and annointing the stomacke with Oleum cera, diuers are cured of a certaine heate, retained in the stomacke.

CHAP. XXI.

The cure of Wartes.

THere is an herbe, called in the Italian tongue Herba di vento: in the iuice whereof, if you wet a cloth, and bind it vpon the wartes, they will weare away in short time after.

The end of the first part of the Appendix.

THE

THE SECOND PART OF THE APPENDIX OR ADDI-

TION, VNTO THIS COLLECTION,

contayning the vse and vertues, of sundry vegetables, animals, &c. gathered out of the Phisickes, of S<sup>r</sup> Leonardo Phiorauante.

CHAP. I.

Of the vse and vertues, of Ebulus or Danewort.

Ake the buds of this vegetable, when they are young and greene, perboile them in water, and make thereof a sallade, and giue it vnto those, that haue costiuue bodies, and it will prouoke them to the stoole. It is an herbe, verie profitable for the sinewes, it

To purge flegme.

Strengthen the sinewes.

comforteth the weake partes, and preserueth such, as are weake in the ioints from many accidēts: it purgeth flegme, which (for the most part) causeth debilitie of the nerues.
Whosoever vseth to drinke of a sirupe, made of the berries thereof, shall not be troubled with the gowt, nor any disease, in the articular partes. The seede dried, is profitable, against all infirmities caused of humiditie.

*Preuent the gowt.
The generall vse.*

CHAP. II.

Of Elleborus niger, and the vse thereof.

THE roote of blacke Hellebore, being dried and kept two yeares, may be safely vsed, without other preparation, and may be ministred, against any infirmitie, that hath his originall, of a melancholicke cause. Therefore it is most appropriate, against the feuer quartaine, and lunatike per-

To purge melancholie.

CHAP. III.

Of the use and vertues of the herbe called Gratia Dei, a kinde of Geranium in English blew Storkes bill.

Cure of Scrophule.

Note.

One medecine may worke vpon diuers causes.

Prouoke vomite.

Feuer.

Putrified vl-cers.

TAke of Gratia Dei, dried in the shadow, and beaten into fine powder, ℥j, Cinamon ℥j, cloues, ʒj, wheate flowre, lbj, oranges condite, ℥j, make thereof a past, with honie, and bake it in the ouen with bread: but take great heed, that it burne not. Of this you shall giue ℥j, to purge against many infirmities: but aboue the rest against Scrophule, against scabs, and the white scall. For it euacuateth onely the superfluous humiditie of the body, it drieth and is appropriate for such kinde of infirmities. Howbeit you must note, that all soluble medecines are not fit, for one disease or complexion: for chiefly and properly, Rubarb purgeth choller, blacke Hellebore auoideth melācholie, Danc-wort dispossesseth the body of flegme, and this herbe clenseth the bloud. Therefore euery one hath his peculiar propertie: though sometime either of them, may worke, vpon more causes then one, yet not so properly or simply, but by accident, and in regard of circumstances.

Two drammes of the powder of this herbe, dronke in wine, or broth, prouoketh vomite and siege, and is very good for such as are lunatike. It helpeth or at the least delayeth the extremitie of the feuer. It is good against greefes of the stomacke, and wind in the bellie.

A decoction thereof made with ley, helpeth putrified vicers, if they be washed therewith: for as it purgeth the stomacke, so it clenseth the sore, and healeth it quicklie, if you wet a cloth, in the said ley, and applie it thereunto.

CHAP. IIII.

Of Rubarb, and his vertues.

THE herbe called, in the Italian tounge, Lappacia maggiore, or Rombice domestice, is a kinde of Rubarb, which among
the

the learned Herbaristes is termed by the name of Rharentiorum: whereof  $\text{ʒj}$ , when it is new will lose the bodie, euacuate choller, as the Rhabarbarum doth. It is very good against oppilations: it purgeth the bloud, and taketh away scabs. Purge choller.

You shall haue, a most precious medecine thereof: if you mixe the greene roote, with honie, cinamon, saffron, ginger, and the powder of roses. The correction or vse.

If you rost the roote in the embers, and mixe it with condited sugar it breaketh the Scrophule, and mundifieth them, and healeth them in short time. Some do mixe it with the gumme, called Ammoniacum; and so do bring it into the forme of an vnguent, and applie it vnto the parts affected with Scrophule. Scrophule.

CHAP. V.

Of Tithymale, and his vertues.

Gather the herbe Tithymale ( called Spurge ) in the moneth of May: take forth the iuice and mixe it with sugar roset. or sugar violet, in fine powder: then make of them both a moist past, and keepe it in a glasse, close stopped. The vse.

When you purpose to vse it, minister two scruples thereof, in broth or any other conuenient sirupe. It purgeth without payne, helpeth al feuers that come of heat: working not onely by the stoole, but prouoking sweat also. Feuers.

It resolueth all continuall and quotidian feuers, when the parties affected therewith be hote, and their sweat cold, yea though they be brought very low, it will by Gods helpe deliuer them of their troublesome aduersarie. Greennesses & gues.

Laureola doth also moue the body, by vomite and siege, but it may not be vsed in any continuall feuer or quotidian; because it will inflame too much. Note.

CHAP. VI.

Of Soldanella, and his vertues.

Dropſie.

Purge ill moi-ſture.

THIS herbe groweth, in ſandie and ſalt ground, and is hote and drie. It purgeth by vomite and ſiege, and is excellent againſt the dropſie, all windineſſe, and vnwholeſome moiſture in the bodie. Being taken in lozenges, with Aromatico, the quantitie of  $\text{ʒ} \text{ij}$ , it ſendeth forth all the noiſome waterineſſe, out of the bodie, drying and heating thoſe parts, in an excellent manner.

CHAP. VII.

*Of Cyperus, and his vertues.*Paſſions or windie torments.

Rupture.

THE herbe Cyperus, called in Engliſh Galingall, being put into new wine, giueth it an excellent good taſt, and ſmell, preuailing againſt inward paſſions, cauſed of wind. It is good for ſuch as are burſten, for it reſolueth the wind: if you take the powder thereof being ſtamped very ſmall, and make a plaſter thereof, with other things appropriate therunto, applying the ſame to the rupture, and chaunging it once euery day. Alſo if the patient do once in a day eate of the roote, he ſhall in ſhort ſpace be holpen of that diſeaſe.

CHAP. VIII.

*Of Elder, and his vertues.*Coole the ſtomacke purge
the bloud.

TAKE the rootes of Elder, waſh them cleane, and ſcrape them till you come to the wood, ſtampe that ſubſtance, and take the iuice, and ſtraine it, boile it, & ſcumme it well, and for euery  $\text{ʒ}$  of the iuice, take one  $\text{ʒ}$  of Mel roſarum, and drinke it, for it will coole the ſtomacke, helpe hote feuers quickly, and purge the bloud.

CHAP. IX.

Of the vertues and uſe of Tabaco.

The uſe.

TAKE of the greene herbe and roote  $\text{ʒ} \text{iiij} \text{ʒ}$  ſtampe it in a mortar with a little ſalt, then put it in a glaſſe with  $\text{ʒ} \text{vj}$ .
of

of the spirite of wine, and set it thirtie dayes to putrifie in horse dounge. Then distill it in Balneo, till all the substance be come forth: and put therein as much Oleum sulfuris as will make it tart. Then keepe it close, and giue thereof euery morning a spoonfull, to any one affected with the feuer, and it will helpe him in short time.

If any man be affected, or greatly troubled with vlcers Vlcers, or scabs: let him drinke thereof euery day one spoonfull, and wash the sores therewith, and in short time it will most wonderfully cure them.

CHAP. X.

Of sweet Margerom, and his vertues.

TAKE sweet Margerom, and stampe it, and take of the iuice,  $\mathfrak{z}$ j, oyle of bitter almonds  $\mathfrak{z}$ j, and  $\mathfrak{D}$ j of Masticke, and snuffe it vp at the nose, three or foure mornings together: and annoint the head with oyle of egges. This purgeth the head, of all paynes, dissolueth tumors, quickneth the sight, and prouoketh sleepe. Payne in the head.

CHAP. XI.

Of Persicaria, his use and vertues.

YOU shall vnderstand, that this herbe, doth worke (in a manner) against all infirmities, most straungely to behold: For if you take the powder thereof, and put it vpon copper molten, it will in the proiection, become like gold, and will draw it to a small quantitie, and make it malleable, and soft like gold, except the colour. The chemicall use.

Also if you make a strong ley of the ashes of Persicaria, and therein boile yellow brimstone, it will draw out of it quicke siluer, which is the Philosophers Mercurie. This herbe doth also most notablie preserue a man from many infirmities, if one part thereof be taken, whiles it is dry, and our other part of Specie venetiane; being both of them well

CHAP. XII.

Of man, and the medecines that are made of him.The nature and qualitie of the partes of man.
The fat.
The bloud.

MAN is a rationally, or reasonable creature, whereof we haue written at large in our booke called Phisica del Fiorauante. But here we will onely write of certaine medecines, that may be made or deriued from him: which are for the ease, helpe and remedie of diuers infirmities which are in men and women. The reason whereof is very good, for euery like reioyceth with, and helpeth his like, and therefore man serueth for man. The fat of a man is (as euery man knoweth) hote, and penetratiue, and mollifying if you anoint the parts therewith, (where the sinewes be hard) and drawen together, or contracted, therefore it will quicklie resolue them. I haue made the Quintaeſſence of mans bloud, rectified and circulated, with the which I haue done most wonderfull cures, for if you giue thereof  $\text{ʒj}$ , it will restore those, that lye at the point of death.

Purifie wine.

It is most profitable, against those infirmities that are in the bloud: for it correcteth the malignitie of the bloud, and preserueth it, as well as the spirite of wine. If you put a litle of it into an hogges head of wine it will purifie it, and preserve it a long time more then any other thing whatsoever. So that this Quintaeſſence, worketh more effectes, for the cure of great and dangerous infirmities then any other.

The liuer of a man.

Also from the liuer of a man, will be drawen by distillation, a water and an oyle. If the water be dronke euery morning together, by the space of a moneth, in the quantitie of  $\text{ʒj}$ , with  $\text{ʒij}$  of liuerwort water, it will recouer such as are halfe rotten thorow diseases of the liuer, and hath diuers other properties, whereof I will not speake at this time.

Flesh of man.

From the flesh of man distilled, there will come forth a stinking water, and an oyle, which is most excellent, to anoint noint woundes withall, when they are badly healed, and that there remaine any hurt about those parts, that they are ont so sensible and pliant, (as they were wont to be before) this resolueth them. And it mollifieth and softneth all hardnesse of any tumor, of what originall soeuer it shall come.

From the forepart of a mans scull, there is drawen by distillation, a water and oyle, and a salt, which is most profitably vsed, against the falling sicknesse. Mans scull.

Finallie, from ech other part of man, there are medecines to be made, for the cure of sundry diseases in man, and woman, as you may also read, more at large, in the spagiricke preparations of Iosephus Quercetanus published in English by Iohn Hester Practitioner in the Spagiricall art.

q
S. J. C. 7277
Du Chêne

CHAP. XIII.

Of an henne, and the Phisicall vse thereof.

SOME write, that the flesh of an henne, will dissolue gold, and that the bones will calcine it easily.

Another told me, that the ashes of hennes fethers, being calcined white, doth mundifie, incarnate and cicatrise vlcers. Dissolue and calcine gold.

Also there is made, an excellent restorative of an henne, after this manner. A restorative.

Take a good fat henne, and pull her quicke, and take forth the guttes onely, and stampe her in a mortar. Then boile it, in xij, lb of faire water, with ℥j of salt, till lb viij be consumed. That done, passe it thorow a strainer, and distill it in Balneo, till all the substance be come forth. Hereof you may giue, vnto the sicke at all times, with a little of a plaine and simple Iulepe. When you finde any euill accident, in the bellie, you must adde thereunto, a little oyle of sweet almondes, newly made, (while it is warme) for then is it one of the best restoratiues, that can be found out or diuised in the world.

CHAP. XIII.

Of Eeles, and the medicinall vse them.Against deafnesse.

Many haue vsed, the fat of an eele, against deafnesse, but to small purpose. But if you will distill the eeles, with Aqua vita, you shall haue a most subtile oyle, which doth most excellently preuaile, against that infirmitie.

Also if you boile the skinned of the eeles, in strong ley, vntill they be dissolved, then strayne it and boile it to a thicknesse: and it will be a most strong glew for wood or other workes.

Also if you annoint a corroding vlcere therewith it will greatly repress the rage thereof and comfort it.

CHAP. XV.

Of the Barbill, and to what vse she serueth in medecine.Lose the bellie.

IN the moneth of May the Barbill hath egges, which are of a soluble quality, and of some those egges being eaten; they shall be prouoked to vomite.

The vse and qualitie.

They haue a qualitie contrarie to other purgers they must be dried in the sunne, mixed with a little Sena, and the ministred in wine or water that is sodden. When it hath well wrought, the patients must eate good meate to nourish them, and may drinke wine, and (when they are disposed thereto) suffer them to sleepe.

CHAP. XVI.

Of Bees, and their medecinall vse.Sterilitie prevented.To quicken dead bees.

BEES are of nature hote and moist, hauing a generatiue propertie. For if they be giuen to any barren creature they shall conceaue in short time after.

Also if you lay dead bees in a drie place to putrifie, wetting them sometime with wine, they will reuiue agayne, though though not as they were before, but they will be much bigger and of an other forme.

These bees if you bring into powder with as much Cantarides; boile them a little with oyle of Chamomill, and anoint any part where the haire is fallen away, and it shall quickly come agayne, and in a short space, a most straunge thing to behold.

CHAP. XVII.

Of frogges, and their vse.

THE skinnes of frogges being boiled and made into the forme of a plaister with waxe and franckincense, is very profitable for such as haue any maligne or troublesome accident about their legges thorow heate.

The fat of frogges is a wonderfull medecine against Entha- S. Antho- co sacro, or S. Anthonies fire, a disease hapning vnto children and others through the great heate that is in their blood.

CHAP. XVIII.

Of Centumipedes, called in English, Somes, and Crickets, &c.

IF you minister the powder of these creatures in wine, it hath many excellent properties, but chiefly, it hath bene experienced, greatly to preuaile, against the stitch in the side, for it will helpe that greefe presently.

If you burne the little cricking creature, called a Cricket, and minister the powder thereof, in some Diureticke liquor, it prouoketh vrine.

Mallowes, Alkakengi, Centum nodi, Centumgrana, and the rootes of Rapes: are of like propertie; being handled and vsed according to art.

There are oftentimes found in standing pooles, and putrified waters, certaine small creatures, which are rounde like a cherry, hauing a tayle and two feete, which are in Lombardie called Comazzi. Take these, and distill thereof a water or liquor, wherewith you may very soone consume or breake iron: a very great secret obserued in nature.

Dissolve iron.

CHAP. XIX.

Of the resine or gumme, called Tacca Mahacca, and the vse thereof.

Cruditie of the Matrix.

TAke thereof as much as you will, distill it in a retort of glasse, & from it there will come both oyle and water. Of which I haue seene diuers medecines made, against sundrie diseases. Annoint the bellie, with this oyle cold, when you go to bed: and it helpeth against the cruditie of the Matrix.

Helpe conception.

If the genitall part of the man be annointed therewith before the act of generatiō, the woman shall be the more fit for conception: for by this meanes some kinde of sterilitie is taken away.

Payne in the head.

It helpeth and easeth payne in the head, proceeding of a cold stomacke.

Helpe digestion.

It helpeth digestion, and resolueth payne, throughout the body, in what part soeuer, they shall come: specially, when they haue their beginning of cold.

wind in the stomacke.

The water hereof, dissolueth wind in the stomacke, helpeth digestion, prouoketh vrine, mitigateth all feuers that come of cold.

CHAP. XX.

Of the gumme Carranna, and the medecinall properties of it.

Chilblaines.

TAke it, and distill it in a retort with the yolkes and whites of egges, and there will come forth oyle, and water, the oyle whereof will be blacke, and the water red.

Sore breasts.

The water of Carranna helpeth Chilblaines, and all choppes or clefts in the lippes arising of cold in the winter.

It is a great ease, for the sore breastes of women, that giue sucke.

The

The oyle worketh wonderfull effectes, in woundes of the wound head, arme, or legges.

Annoint a simple wound therewith, once or twise : and Heale quicklye it will very speedily be healed.

Take a quantitie of this gumme , and mixe it with as much of the seede of water cresses, and the white of an egge, and make thereof a cerote, to apply vnto a rupture : where- Rupture. with it will in short time be healed, all other circumstances being also obserued.

CHAP. XXI.

Of liquide Amber, and the medecinall vertues thereof.

TAke liquide amber , and distill it in a retort : and from thence, there will come a red oyle.

This oyle is vsed , against all indispositions of cold , and Cold and wind moisture, or wind. dinesse.

The same healeth scabs, and is good for woundes. Scabs.

If you annoint the stomacke therewith , it will excee- Comfort the dingly comfort the same: for it is a thing vncorruptible, and stomacke. like vnto Balsamum.

*The end of the Appendix vnto
the former Collection.*

3
1/2

5.2.7-

